

BRITISH ENVOY'S HOTEL BLASTED IN TURKEY

ISTANBUL, March 11 (AP)—A heavy explosion rocked the Pera Palace Hotel tonight a few minutes after George W. Rendel, former British minister to Bulgaria, and his legation staff had taken up headquarters there.

Screams of the wounded and dying could be heard from the street immediately after the blast as police and firemen fought their way into the hotel.

Rendel, who left Sofia by special train after Britain severed diplomatic relations with German-occupied Bulgaria, had reached Istanbul only shortly before with 67 other Britons.

7 BILLION AID CASH SOUGHT

Britain Wants U.S. Fleet For Atlantic War, Is Hint

President Roosevelt's first move after signing the lend-lease bill will be to ask Congress for $7,000,000,000 with which to begin the U. S. aid to Britain. The bill is expected to become law within 24 hours.

It is revealed that the appropriations sought immediately will be "all cash." Contract authorizations are not included—the appropriations for these will come later.

The $7,000,000,000 proposed is in addition to present war supplies valued at $1,300,000,000 which the President is empowered to transfer to Britain.

At the same time today a high London naval source declared Britain wanted all the ships she could get from America and that enough trained British personnel was ready to man the whole United States fleet if it were turned over to Britain for the developing "Battle of the Atlantic."

So far, however, the British have not officially suggested that United States naval assistance was needed in combating Hitler's sea raiders.

F. D. Speeds Huge Aid Sum

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt, congressional authorities disclosed today, will ask Congress for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to carry out the British aid program under legislation which he is expected to sign late today or tomorrow.

The chief executive probably will request that sum in a message to Congress tomorrow. He disclosed his intention to ask for the huge amount at a conference attended by members of the Senate and House appropriations committees and other legislators.

Chairman Glass (D.) of Virginia of the Senate appropriations committee made the announcement that Mr. Roosevelt would recommend the appropriation, and he said it would be "all cash."

That would omit any contract authorizations.

CAN BUY EVERYTHING

What specific items the money would be used for was not disclosed, but members of the congressional delegation which called at the White House said it would permit purchase of "all articles authorized in the British aid bill."

Sen. Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina, when asked what period the appropriation would be for, said it would cover "the life of the bill."

Furthermore, the $7,000,000,000 total, Byrnes explained, is inclusive of $1,300,000,000 of war supplies now in possession of the Army and Navy which may be transferred to Britain or other nations.

In other words, Byrnes explained, if the President transferred to Britain $500,000,000 of Army equipment, $500,000,000 of the new $7,000,000,000 fund could be turned over to the Army for the acquisition of new equipment.

RECORD APPROPRIATION

Actually, the $7,000,000,000 might vary up or down a slight amount, several congressmen indicated, but it is the best round number available.

The $7,000,000,000 would be the largest peacetime appropriation ever requested in America's history. The chief executive, moving rap-

U. S. Experts Train British

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—The Battle of the Atlantic is on, Britons proclaimed today and officials optimistically staked the future of the kingdom and empire on United States aid at hand or available.

Without clarifying his intent, a high British naval official said that Britain had enough trained personnel to man the whole American fleet if it were turned over to her for the conflict between British shipping and Axis raiders, aerial, surface and subsurface.

Britain, he declared, wants all the ships from America she can get. He paid high tribute to the 50 former United States destroyers now conveying freighters on the empire's lifelines.

U. S. PLANES IN TIME

Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair told the House of Commons that American warplanes "will get here in time" for the developing battle of the seaways.

He said Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels was telling "his dupes" that American help for Britain would arrive too late.

"But I tell the House that splendid aircraft—the choicest fruits of American design and craftsmanship—will get here in time," Sir Archibald said.

Well-armed quarters said Britain already has trained a vast skeleton organization of fliers, seamen and soldiers to take over the large quantities of planes, ships and guns expected from the United States.

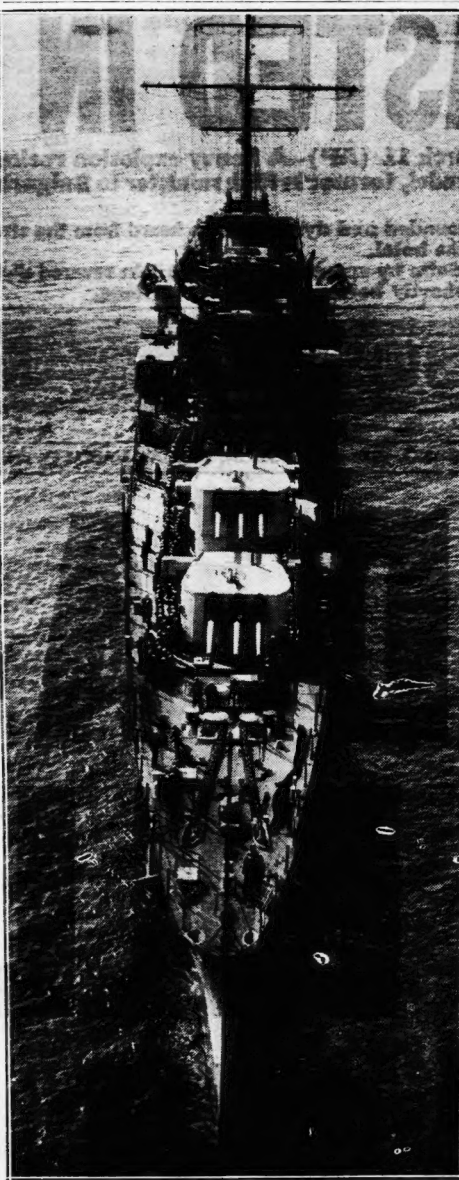

U. S. EXPERTS TRAIN BRITISH

American military, naval and air experts have been working here more than four months in close co-operation with the British so that the empire's forces can operate American equipment immediately.

He said the RAF was "now on the threshold of its period of great expansion" and declared that unless Hitler had a "more effective secret weapon than any he has yet managed to produce" the British planes going into the battle would be better than Nazi craft.

In the past 10 months, he an-

Nazis Hint Jap Move Against U.S.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
BERLIN, March 11 (AP)—Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka's forthcoming visit to Berlin is one of a series of counter actions to the United States aid-to-Britain bill which may be expected from the signers of the tripartite alliance, informed Germans said today.

The announcement that Matsuoka would be accompanied by military experts was regarded as significant here.

"Whether it is accidental or premeditated," authorized sources said, "at least it is symptomatic of our time that Matsuoka's departure on a trip which should bring him to Germany in about a fortnight coincides with passage of the lend-lease bill."

LAW AND ORDER AIMS

"None of the powers adhering to the tripartite pact believe in the purely defensive character of that measure."

Matsuoka is coming, it was said, not to talk war but:

First, law and order; second, security against aggression; third, prevention of a further widening of the combat area; fourth, reiteration that the tripartite powers, on the one hand, do not desire to meddle with the affairs of any outside areas, and, on the other hand, that they reject any attempt to meddle with areas claimed by Germany, Italy and Japan as entitling them to undisputed leadership.

It was pointed out that no Japanese foreign minister has visited Germany since 1935.

"WAIT ABOUT 14 DAYS"

Whether Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, would come to Berlin to attend conferences of Hitler and Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop with Japanese leaders was not disclosed, but authorized quarters said significantly:

"Ask that question again in about 14 days."

Reiterating the three-power pact, authorized quarters insisted its purpose was purely preventive.

"Only if some other power has an itch to attack one of the signatories are the other powers to come to the aid of the attacked."

SOLUTION SEEN NEAR IN DEBUTANTE KILLING

KANSAS CITY, March 11 (AP)—Police Chief L. B. Reed said today that the butcher slaying of Leila Adele Welsh, 24, was nearing a solution.

"After 2 o'clock this morning," he said, "the police department received some definite and positive information that seems very encouraging in this case. Of the maze of clues and tips given us so far, this seems to be the best yet."

Reed said special investigators were working on the slaying of the girl, who was hammered and slashed to death in her bed Sunday morning.

SUSPECTS QUIZZED

He refused to say whether he expected an arrest shortly. Several suspects have been questioned. Although he left behind the death weapons—a railroad hammer and a butcher knife—as well as a pair of blood-stained cotton gloves, the slayer benefited in his escape by the fact the tragedy was not discovered until daylight by the mother of the attractive, socially prominent victim.

Police questioned several suspects to little avail. The City Council appropriated $500 as a reward for apprehension and conviction of the killer.

THROAT SLASHED

A blood analysis completed last night convinced officers that Miss Welsh, a 1937 beauty contestant at the University of Kansas City, awakened and registered fright seconds before her assailant sent the hammer crashing through her skull at her home in a well-to-do section of Kansas City. The slayer cut her throat, knifed her pajamas to shreds, tossed the bed covering over the body and fled with the slashed portion of hip, only to drop it 100 yards from the house along with the gloves.

No motive for the slaying has been uncovered. Miss Welsh, who shared with a brother and sister in a $200,000 trust fund, was not robbed or criminally assaulted.

The killing was accomplished with such stealth after entry to the house was made through a bedroom window that no outcries were heard and police have been unable to find anyone who definitely saw the killer in the neighborhood.

BLOOD STAINS ANALYZED

The theft Saturday night of an automobile which police fired on later near the Welsh home and which was found, marked by two bullet holes, near Corydon, Ia., yesterday drew police attention. Officers expressed doubt, however, that it had any vital bearing on the case.

The Kansas City Star says it learned late last night that blood smears were found in the bathroom of a vacant house in the neighborhood of the Welsh home and that the blood is being analyzed. Police would not comment on the report.

Police Chief L. B. Reed, former

FBI agent, issued a special request for citizens to help his department in tracing ownership of the hammer and knife. Scores of tips, most of them, dealing with persons suspected of perversion, were telephoned police.

The city council, in unanimously approving the reward, referred to the slaying as a "foul, heinous crime."

Miss Welsh would have inherited at the age of 35 approximately $100,000 from trust funds. William C. Lucas, lawyer and a trustee of the estate, said her death would increase by one-half the amounts which will go ultimately to her brother, George, a bond and mortgage salesman, and the sister, Mrs. Jack Turner, of Scott Field, Ill. The funds were established by grandparents.

Miss Welsh already had shared in a $25,000 trust fund. Next Nov. 7, when she would have been 25, she would have received $1000 as a bequest under her step-grandmother's will.

LEILA ADELE WELSH
Slashed to Death

Killing of Ex-Melrose Man Linked to Love

Less than a dozen hours after Joseph R. Lorenz, 47, Boston and Chicago chemist, was shot to death in a fashionable Chicago street, police today ordered the arrest of a Chicago drug store waitress' husband.

Authorities, in ordering the arrest of Walter Appelt, 32, of Shumway, Ill., said Appelt's estranged wife had admitted being friendly with Lorenz for more than a year.

She entered the investigation unexpectedly when police found in the slain man's wallet rent receipts for her apartment.

Before that, police had entertained as a possibility the theory that there might have been an international angle in the street slaying of Lorenz, former Melrose resident, who performed research work during a period of 10 years for Lynn and Salem leather concerns.

DIVORCED WIFE HERE

Lorenz's divorced wife, Mrs. Margaret Lorenz, who obtained her decree in 1937, is now living in Rowe st., Melrose, and today said she was "not particularly interested in what happens in Chicago."

A sister of the slain man is Mrs. Clarissa Aiken of Fuller pl., Cambridge, whose divorced husband is Conrad Aiken, distinguished poet and Pulitzer prize winner. Mrs. Aiken, like Mrs. Lorenz, said she had not seen the chemist for three or four years.

Lorenz was shot to death only a few doors from his apartment house on Chicago's residential North Side. He had been shot at least six times in the back of the head, neck and shoulders. Nine discharged cartridges from a .22-calibre gun were found scattered near by.

TRACE BORROWED RIFLE

The small calibre of the weapon apparently used puzzling police, according to Capt. Patrick O'Connell of Chicago, until they found the rent receipts for Mrs. Appelt's apartment and sought other clues. O'Connell said the 23-year-old Mrs. Appelt, who was held for questioning, told him she and her husband had been separated for more than a year but that Appelt was "intensely jealous" of her.

On Sunday evening Appelt visited his wife and their 6-year-old daughter, but whether the couple

ASKS FORTUNE FOR LOVE

MRS. CIEL R. PATTERSON
Seeks $200,000 in Heart Balm Suit

DIVORCEE'S OWN LOVE STORY IS TOLD IN SUIT

Her own story of a courtship she said began in Florida and ended in Boston was related today in Suffolk Superior Court by Mrs. Ciel R. Patterson of Cleveland in support of her $200,000 heart balm suit against Vernal E. Clem, 63-year-old Westwood milk company executive.

The Cleveland divorcee took the witness stand after Clem had concluded his testimony in which he denied any promise to marry had been made.

"I was not seeing her unless she came to see me," he testified, in explaining her visits to his home in Ballard st., Jamaica Plain and his summer home at Cotuit.

Mrs. Patterson, however, in her pledge, declared Clem had asked her to marry him under pledges of undying love and affection.

HIS IDEAL TYPE

She testified to having left Cleveland, where she was a saleswoman of ladies' wear, for a vacation trip to Florida in 1931, where she met Clem at a party.

"After the party he drove me to my hotel, and on parting I told him I was leaving next day to return home," she said.

"I've enjoyed your company so much," Mrs. Patterson said Clem told her. "You're just the type of girl that I've been looking for all my life."

On the way home, she testified her car had a flat tire near Daytona and Clem came along and aided her.

COMES TO BOSTON

"While the tire was being fixed, he sat with me and made an awful fuss over me," Mrs. Patterson testified. She said they met again in Daytona and went to night clubs and beach parties.

"Did you and Clem have any improper relations up to that time?" Mrs. Patterson was asked. "Oh, no," she answered emphatically.

On her return to Cleveland, she said that within a period of six weeks, Clem sent her from 25 to 30 night letters and made many long-distance phone calls. She added:

"He said he was very anxious to see me again and urged me to come to Boston. He said he missed me dreadfully. When I told him I had obtained a vacation, he told me to go to the station, take a stateroom on a train for Boston and said he would meet me on arrival. He was right there when the train arrived."

TOLD OF HIS WEALTH

"He said he had been thinking of me constantly and told me I was his ideal. He said his life had been very unhappy, but that he was sure I could make it happy for him."

Mrs. Patterson said Clem had engaged a suite for her in a Back Bay hotel and they subsequently met many times.

"He talked often of marriage and said he was going to buy me a new home on Cape Cod," she testified. "He also said he was

Cambridge Begins Razing 76 Buildings

In the presence of city officials, architects and members of the Cambridge Housing Authority, demolition was started today on 76 buildings, including three factories, to make way for the $1,127,800 federal housing project.

The building will cover the area bounded by Portland, Harvard, Windsor and Washington sts., and will be an extension of the New Towne Court housing project. There will be 18 buildings erected to house 324 families in apartments, renting from $18.50 to $27.50.

KITCHENER'S AIDE DIES

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Gerard Arthur Fletcher Sanders, 72, retired, who fought under the late Earl Kitchener in the Sudan in 1898 and now active duty in the World War, died today.

DEWING BEGINS PROBE OF BROCKTON TRAGEDY

BROCKTON, March 11—Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing of Plymouth County today entered the probe into yesterday's Strand Theater fire which cost the lives of 12 Brockton firemen and injured 21 others.

Promising prosecution if evidence of criminal neglect is found, the district attorney assigned Lieut. Al-experts and all the theater employees for clues to the cause of the roof collapse.

PENSIONS PLANNED

Already, the city council has taken necessary legal steps to insure that pensions be paid the dependents of the victims.

Under law, the widow of a fireman who dies in line of duty receives an annuity of $925 a year for life, or half pay. For each minor child, $200 a year is given, the entire sum not to exceed a fireman's pay of $1350. Families of officers receive a somewhat higher amount.

It was recalled to citizens today that Brockton firemen are the poorest paid of any corresponding city in the State. A move is already under way—and apparently certain of approval—to restore a pay cut given members of the department seven years ago.

With a total strength of 120 men Brockton's department lost 10 per cent of their force. As a result, men now awaiting appointment under civil service were temporarily pressed into service, while volunteers from nearby communities also reported for duty.

Offers of men were made by chiefs in cities and towns throughout the district, including Boston.

Fire Chief Samuel Pope of Boston, following a conference with Mayor Tobin and Fire Commr. Reilly, went to Brockton for a conference with fire officials there toward arranging a loan of Boston firemen pending a reorganization of the Brockton department.

The Boston chief was also to offer a complete fire coverage of Brockton by Boston men during funerals of the 12 victims tomorrow.

Flags on all public buildings are to remain half-staffed for 30 days in tribute to those who lost their lives, declared to be the heaviest loss ever suffered by a New England fire department.

FIREBUG LINK

Of the injured still in Brockton Hospital, the most serious was Pvt. Bartholomew Herlihy, suffering from a crushed chest and a broken leg. Although his name was on the danger list, doctors hoped for his life.

Meanwhile, funeral arrangements were completed for all the victims save that of Frederick F. Kelley, 45, of Exchange st. Such plans were to be announced today.

RECOVERS—Back in his Brockton home after being treated for injuries sustained in fighting the fatal fire in the Strand Theater, Fireman John J. Dowd sips a cup of coffee . . . while recovering.

bert A. Brouillard of the State Police to the investigation.

"This is an almost unbelievable situation," said Dewing, referring to the fact that 12 men had died in what appeared to be a routine fire.

"You can be assured that my office is going to the very root of it, and if we find there has been any criminal neglect we will prosecute. But at this moment I have no information which would make me believe there has been criminal neglect."

Dewing said Lieut. Brouillard would report the results of his separate probe at the inquest opening tomorrow before State Fire Marshal Stephen J. Garrity.

Pointing for this inquest, state and city fire officials today were pressing questioning of building

DEATH CAME CLOSE—A miraculous escape from instant death was experienced by Fireman William Kelleher while fighting the flames from a corner of the Strand Theater's roof when it collapsed. Luckily, he managed to grab a rafter . . . and then slid down a fire hose to the ground where his mates beat out the fire in his clothing. This spot news photo, taken by Richard Crooker, shows Kelleher clinging to rafter before sliding to safety. He was seriously burned.

German Paper For London

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—A German-language daily newspaper, "Die Zeitung," will begin publication here tomorrow "with the consent and approval of the British government," the Maxwell Publishing Company announced today.

The paper is intended to inspire formation of a "free German group in the Allied forces," it said. It described the objective as "that unimaginable thing: a free, independent German daily."

The publishers said they wished "to offer German emigrants a new signal for rally and attack."

Harvard Men Get $2500 In Awards

Awards totalling nearly $2500 have been issued to students at Harvard and the college's graduate schools for next year, it was revealed today.

Francis L. Dawson, Jr., of Lynn was awarded a scholarship by the Harvard Club of Lynn, while James W. L. Monkham of St. Paul, Minn., was given the Harvard Student Council award.

The Sheldon travelling fellowship in history for next summer was awarded to Barnaby C. Keeney, instructor and tutor in history at Harvard.

Divinity school scholarships were given to William P. McEwen of Boston, Kenneth A. L. Viall of Cambridge, and William H. Maurer of Bethlehem, Pa., James N. Spuhler of Tucuman, New Mexico, receiving the Bronson Cutting award from the graduate school of arts and sciences.

In the Harvard business school, a national scholarship was awarded to Wendell P. Taylor of Cleveland Heights, O., and the Harvard business school scholarship was given to Laurie D. Cox, Jr., of Syracuse, N. Y.

Long Is Left Holding Bag On Sales Tax

Still seeking to slap a drab grab bill on the public, State Tax Commr. Henry F. Long was left as a wavering Horatius-at-the-bridge today when even the petitioner ran out on a 3 per cent "selective sales tax."

While the hearing was on before the legislative committee on taxation, Howard G. Brown of Haverhill, who filed the measure, asked that it be amended to exclude Haverhill, "so I can go back there and live."

But the indomitable tax commissioner carried on alone in a sea of antagonism, arguing more than an hour for the bill, calculated to raise between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 for the state, and claiming that opponents are those who fear a sales tax would hurt their business.

ON "LUXURIES" ONLY

Although Long declared the proposed taxes to be only on "luxuries," the items to be taxed include tobacco, soap, tooth paste and mouth washes. Picking this up, former Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman of Boston, representing the Massachusetts Pharmaceutical Ass'n, retorted to Long:

"Poor people smoke, wash and brush their teeth."

Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the Retail Trade Board, told the committee that the proposed tax "falls heaviest on people of small incomes because they have to spend the greatest portion of their income on the things a sales tax reaches."

Declaring that the national defense program is hampered by a lack of skilled workers, former Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly spoke before the committee on education in State provide free courses in skilled trades.

"The states owe a duty to its citizens," he said, "as well as to the commonwealth which they have built, to train men in these trades."

"Much latent talent could be uncovered if this bill were adopted, since a majority of the persons affected have not enough funds to attend a professional training school."

Carrying jars of cinders and coal dust, as well as soot-begrimed clothes, South Shore women appeared before the committee on public health in support of a bill to compel manufacturing plants in Quincy and Weymouth to install equipment to abolish the annoyance.

The bill, by former Mayor Joseph L. Whiton of Quincy, is directed mainly at the Edgar plant of the Edison Co. at Fors River, but Atty. F. M. Ives, for the company, protested to the committee that nearly $3,000,000 has been spent to this purpose.

Whiton told the committee that conditions in Quincy, Germantown and North Weymouth "are as bad today as they were two years ago when officials of the Edison Co. promised to remedy matters."

"We have done everything humanly possible to eliminate this nuisance," protested Atty. Ives.

Man's Stomach Removed But He Works Every Day

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer
RICHMOND, Va., March 11—It is possible to live without your stomach, sometimes more happily than with it.

Dr. Robert L. Sanders of Memphis, Tenn., described before the Southeastern Surgical Congress today the case of a man suffering from cancer who has been getting along well without that organ for the past year.

As an illustration of the need for early diagnosis and prompt treatment Dr. Sanders declared the patient was found to have two entirely different types of cancer of the stomach, both of which had begun to spread. At operation the entire stomach was removed and the upper opening to it was stitched directly to the small intestine in a delicate surgical maneuver.

The man returned to work and has been getting along without difficulty, Dr. Sanders declared.

"He has to eat more frequently than other people and in smaller amounts, but he has no difficulty in digestion because digestion is a function of the intestines and the stomach is merely a natural concrete mixer to stir up the food you eat," it was explained.

In another case he found it possible to remove the entire first part of the colon in which two types of cancer had developed, stitch the ends of the intestines together and preserve the patient's life for more than five years.

LYONS AND MANNOS KICK-BACK FEE TOTAL $40,000, STATE SAYS

Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge and Paul Mannos, Brooklyn contractor, collected about $40,000 from architects and engineers engaged in doing work for the city of Cambridge, Dist. Atty. Bradford charged today in Middlesex Superior Court.

They had a "general scheme" of assessing all such persons one-third of the fees granted, he told the jury.

This scheme was launched when the defendant Lyons took office in 1938 as mayor, the prosecutor declared, "and it coincided with the launching of a $2,000,000 building program."

The government, he asserted, would prove that total fees in the neighborhood of $120,000 were subject to "the scheme," that all payments had to be made in cash, and that no one could get a contract without agreeing to such payments.

ACCUSED OF CONSPIRACY

Mayor Lyons and Mannos are on trial on charges of conspiracy, requesting and accepting bribes. Outlining the State's case, Bradford went over the seven joint indictments and the two against Lyons alone.

He told the jury—which is without a Cambridge resident on it—that there were 66 separate instances of bribes being requested and received either by Lyons or Mannos and that each would be explained by a witness.

Arrayed against the defendants were men of national fame in their fields, Bradford stated, and all were ready to tell their stories.

The district attorney began his presentation with an explanation of what the state terms a conspiracy and closed it with the words:

"This was a general conspiracy—a wrongful combination by the defendants to do a series of wrongful acts. Each separate act will be set out by the State separately and some of the evidence will go beyond the separate act."

The government, Bradford said, would show that when Lyons launched his building program and his scheme for collecting one-third of the architects' and engineers' fees, it was with the "active assistance" of Mannos.

(Mannos is the former president of the defunct Canton Mutual Insurance Co.)

"The government will show through witnesses that the basic scheme never changed," said the prosecutor.

There was one instance of a modification, he added later, when instead of payment being made to Mayor Lyons or Mannos directly, it was done through a third party. Bradford also asserted that the State would prove that Mayor Lyons instructed one architect, Charles E. Greco, chairman of the State Art Commission, to make payments to him last year, because "he (Lyons) and Mannos had a falling out."

MAYOR O.K.'D CONTRACTS

Any architect or engineer who refused to agree with the fee percentage plan "got nowhere." It was charged, but after agreeing found they way to a contract "made smooth for him."

This was possible, Bradford explained, because the old charter of the city of Cambridge provided that the mayor must approve all contracts.

He said that the income taxes on these fees had to be paid by the architect or engineers who received them and that they weren't allowed to deduct the one-third they "kicked back," when figuring out their taxes.

The Commonwealth will call to the stand the men who did the work," said Bradford.

He said that one was John W. Beal, former public works commissioner and member of the architectural firm of J. William Beal & Son.

This firm won the contract for the addition to the Cambridge Tuberculosis Hospital and Beal, said Bradford, would testify to making his payments through Anthony F. Spinelli, a contractor friend.

"The only variation of the scheme," the prosecutor commented at this point.

AT ODDS WITH MANNOS

Greco, he said, had to take the money he paid to Mayor Lyons' home after the alleged "falling out" between the Cambridge chief executive and his confederate, Mannos. Rep. John V. Kimball, former mayor of Malden, the jury was told, would testify to talks with Lyons in which the defendant told him he could have engineering contracts only by paying the one-third "kick-back."

Kimball, said Bradford, would tell of paying one alleged bribe in cash to Mayor Lyons himself.

After the first payment "kick-backs" went through the architects on the job, he added, and James F. McLaughlin of the firm of Mc-

PAUL MANNOS (LEFT) AND MAYOR JOHN W. LYONS
To Court Today to Face Bribe Charges

Laughlin & Burr received one to remit. Greco also forwarded a "kickback" at another time, Bradford stated.

McLaughlin's firm did the designing for the Cahill House, the Cambridge Maternity Hospital and the East Cambridge branch library.

Greco's concern remodeled the Lafayette sq. fire station, the city incinerating plant and the Cambridge High and Latin School. The Kimball company did the engineering for the Tuberculosis Hospital, the Cahill House and the Cambridge School.

Rep. Kimball was then called to the stand and said that he was engaged with the Arthur D. Kimball Co. which specialized in heating and lighting and had done work all over New England for 35 years.

TELLS OF MEETING

The witness told of having met Mayor Lyons in the lobby of the State House in 1938 and then of an alleged conversation later in Lyons' office.

Bradford asked:

"What conversation did you have?"

"I understood Cambridge was to do considerable work and asked if we could have some of it. He (Lyons) asked me to kick back one-third of our commission."

Q—What did you say? A—I said all right.

Q—Was any specific job mentioned? A—No.

Q—What was said? A—I spoke of work being done and he said my concern would be acceptable; that if we did the work I would have to kick back one-third of our commission.

Q—Did you receive any employment on any Cambridge project? A—Yes, on building the tuberculosis hospital the early summer of 1938.

Q—Did you receive any communication from any architect between February and early summer? A—I received a telephone call in the early summer. In response I sent my brother to give the information needed.

Q—Did you receive anything from the Beal office? A—Blue-prints.

Cash books for the witness' firm were then produced. Rep. Kimball identified one item as a payment from the Beal company.

HAD CALL FROM LYONS

Bradford then wanted to know if Kimball had received any payment specifically for the tuberculosis hospital job. The witness said he had, on Feb. 3, 1939.

Q—How much? A—$3326.10.

Kimball said he later received a fee of $2098.80 from the firm of McLaughlin & Burr for his company's work on the maternity hospital.

Q—Following this did you receive any communication from Mayor Lyons? A—Yes, about Feb. 20, I had a telephone call. He wanted me to come over to Cambridge and bring the money. I went over.

Q—Did you take the money with you? A—Yes.

WENT TO MAYOR'S OFFICE

Q—How much? A—$1508.40 in cash.

Q—Where did you go? A—I went to Mayor Lyons' office.

Q—What did you do there? A—I went to the mayor's office and placed an envelope on Mayor Lyons' desk, saying: "Here it is, Mr. Mayor." Mayor Lyons picked it up and put it in his pocket. That was about a year after he had agreed to "kicking back" one-third of his commission, the witness said.

It was after talking with Charles R. Greco in the summer of 1938 that his firm got the Cambridge High and Latin School contract, Kimball went on to say.

Q—You were paid for that? A—Yes.

Q—When? Mr. Greco paid me on July 20, 1938.

Q—How much was the amount? A—$3752.89.

On the very next day, said Kimball, he took $1917.56 to Greco as the payment for the maternity hospital job.

Kimball said he paid income tax on the full amount of his fees, and then Atty. Francis T. Leahy, counsel for Mayor Lyons, took the witness for cross-examination.

Kimball repeated his meeting with Mayor Lyons and said he thought that Reps. "Dillon and Mahoney" had spoken to him about getting some Cambridge business before that meeting.

"KICK-BACK" MENTIONED

Q—Did you seek the introduction to Mayor Lyons or did he seek it with you? A—I don't think either of us sought the introduction.

Kimball said he believed Rep. Mahoney might have made an appointment for him with Mayor Lyons afterwards, but one was made, anyhow.

At that meeting, asserted the witness, the mayor asked if he (Kimball) would like to have his firm considered and then the one-third "kick-back" was mentioned.

Q—Weren't you surprised that the Mayor of Cambridge used that phrase? A—Well, I don't know.

Leahy then directed his questioning to how Kimball came to go to the Middlesex district attorney's office.

"Mr. (John Corbett) Donahue, an assistant district attorney, first requested me to," was his reply.

He made a second visit of his own accord, said the witness.

Q—What did Mr. Donahue say to you? A—He said I might be involved in this business.

Q—Did he say it might lead to your indictment? A—I don't believe he did.

Rep. Kimball made it very definite at this point that he had received no promises of immunity from the state.

"Do you think that in giving Mayor Lyons $1508.40 you committed any offense?" Atty. Leahy fired at him.

"No," was the reply.

TO BROADCAST 'LIFE OF CHRIST'

HOLLYWOOD, March 11 (AP)—Catholic actors and actresses of Hollywood have completed a master transcription of "The Living God," radio drama of the life of Christ, to be re-broadcast in American and Canadian communities during Holy Week, beginning April 6.

The five 15-minute episodes were recorded under the auspices of the National Council of Catholic Men. The cast includes Pedro De Cordoba as the voice of Christ, Jane Wyatt as Mary Magdalen, William Gargan, Una O'Connor and J. Carroll Nash.

Supporting the principal players were students from Loyola University of Los Angeles and Immaculate Heart College of Hollywood.

Soldier Death Clue Sought in Hospital

Sergt. Joseph Fallon of the Boston police homicide squad today went to Psychopathic Hospital to question every attendant or doctor who had any connection with the case of Fernand Trudel, 22-year-old Gardner volunteer soldier who died of mysterious injuries.

The police probe of the death of the young man was only one of a four-sided investigation which is aimed at establishing all the facts from the time Trudel was carried from Ft. Banks Hospital, Winthrop, to Massachusetts General Hospital, where he died March 4.

State officials also collected data on a brief period Trudel spent at Boston Psychopathic Hospital.

IN GOOD CONDITION

Meanwhile, controversy over the reason for his injuries heightened after Col. Monte J. Hickok, commanding officer at Fort Banks, reported he had a receipt from Boston Psychopathic Hospital showing the youth was received at that hospital Feb. 28 in good physical condition.

Dr. Solomon Gagnon, superintendent of the Psychopathic reported that it is immaterial whether the Army has such a receipt; that he is prepared to prove that Trudel's body was a "mass of bruises" when he was delivered at the hospital.

HAS HOSPITAL Q. K.

Col. Hickok displayed photostatic copies of the "Q. K." receipt for Trudel to investigators from the Army Inspector General's office, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Boston Police Homicide Squad and the State Department of Mental Health.

"Complete and impartial investigation" of all circumstances surrounding the medical survey, which declared young Trudel mentally unfit and ordered his discharge from the Army and transfer to Psychopathic Hospital, and of circumstances surrounding his subsequent death in Massachusetts General Hospital, was ordered by Maj. Gen. James A. Woodruff, corps area commander.

"The Army has nothing to conceal. This case shall be sifted thoroughly and impartially. All Army records and memoranda shall be available to all legally authorized investigators," Gen. Woodruff declared.

Col. Martin H. Shute and men of Army "G-2" intelligence units were immediately ordered on the case.

MAY HAVE BEEN KICKED

G-men were assigned on appeal of Trudel's father, Theogene Trudel of Gardner, who was in Boston to press for clearing up of mystery surrounding death of his son.

State director of the Division of Mental Health, Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, began a personal probe of circumstances in the case after receipt of the youth at the Psychopathic Hospital.

Sergt. Fallon was assigned to the case after Medical Examiner William J. Brickley announced Trudel's death due to ruptured internal organs, and declared injuries were disclosed by an autopsy which would indicate bruises consistent with his having been kicked.

WIDESPREAD STRIKES STILL PERIL DEFENSE

By the Associated Press

Strikes bearing directly or indirectly on the nation's rearmament drive continued today to dot the industrial map.

The one which directly affected the most men and women was the bus strike in New York city. It sent nearly 900,000 city dwellers walking to their business or seeking transportation by subway or taxicab.

The CIO Transport Workers Union is asking wage increases, longer paid vacations and a uniform eight-hour day for drivers, conductors, garage men and mechanics.

A group of AFL metal trade riggers struck yesterday at the Ingalls shipbuilding yard at Pascagoula, Miss., where cargo vessels are being built. The union claimed 150 men were affected; the company said only 50 of its 2000 employees were involved.

The company contended the strike was jurisdictional; the union said it was called because of improper recognition by the firm and in protest to wages, hours, working conditions and alleged discrimination against the riggers trade.

1500 OUT IN PHILADELPHIA
At Philadelphia, where the J. G. Brill Co. was working on $418,661 worth of artillery and ammunition orders, CIO steel workers were on strike for higher wages, a union ship and vacation and seniority concessions. The firm employs 1500.

About 2400 A. F. of L. electrical workers walked out yesterday at the Cornell Dubilier Corp., Plain-Industry labor board, intended to conditions." Officials said the company had orders for $1,500,000 worth of electrical equipment which was needed for $40,000,00 worth of defense work elsewhere.

Federal officials at Washington were excited to make another move soon to settle the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. strike and get the big Milwaukee factory back to work on $45,000,000 in Army and Navy orders.

DEFENSE LABOR BOARD

Defense officials at the national capital were reported to be perfecting their plans for a defense industry labor board, intended to arbitrate industrial disputes.

A union spokesman said CIO employee of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., plants in New Jersey and Pennsylvania would vote Wednesday on whether to strike for a union shop and a wage boost. The company, which has some $200,000 in defense contracts, offered employees increases totaling $225,000, but the union men rejected the proposal.

PICKETS PARADE—Demanding chiefly a uniform eight-hour day and a 25 per cent salary increase, 3500 New York bus drivers strike . . . tying up the city's transportation. Here, pickets parade in front of Gotham garage in which 260 buses are remaining "at ease."

LEWIS ASKS WAGE INCREASE FOR 450,000 COAL MINERS

NEW YORK, March 11 (INS)—Wage increases were demanded today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America (CIO), in submitting to the nation's soft coal operators proposals for a new two-year contract affecting 450,000 miners.

Lewis recommended elimination of "inequitable" wage differentials between the northern and southern bituminous fields, a $8 minimum day rate of pay, continuation of the present seven-hour day, five-day week, double time for Sundays and holidays, a guarantee of 200 working days each year and two weeks' annual vacation with pay.

UNION FACES ARMY FIGHT, OWN RANKS SPLIT ON MONEY

Highlighting developments on the military front, carpenters of the New Bedford union today had a double fight on their hands—against Army officials at Camp Edwards and within their own ranks.

At a special meeting marked by angry outbursts, the carpenters threatened to call a strike on all national defense work at the camp after hearing a business agent declare he had been "ridden out of the camp at the point of a bayonet."

At the same stormy session, a bitter squabble developed over the reading of the union's financial report in which it was disclosed that the union, which had about $1200 in its treasury at the start of 1940 collected more than $262,000 in union fees.

ARMY IN CHARGE

Army officials at Camp Edwards took over construction work after all the Walsh Construction Co. officials departed.

Joseph L. Gullibault, business agent, who said he was chased out of the camp, declared that "an Army captain told me the Army does not recognize unions." He said further:

"The Army frightened us last time into signing for time and a half on Saturday when we should have received double time, and if we let them scare us now it may mean our living."

While others shouted approval one carpenter, yelling from the floor, said "if the Army is going to fight us, we'll fight the Army."

Henry Bowles, union president, said a report had been made to international headquarters, and they were awaiting instructions before deciding on action.

DEMANDS ACCOUNTING

Bitter comment and demands for an itemized accounting followed the reading of the union's financial report.

Of the $262,000 collected in union fees during 1940, $21,000 went for expenses, but no itemized account was given. Business Agent Gullibault told the members "some sheets were blurred and names missing" but that a detailed itemized account would be made available as soon as possible.

At Fort Devens, the new base hospital, built and equipped at a cost of $2,000,000, was officially opened by the hospital commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. Miner F. Feich.

1000 BEDS

For the present, the hospital will operate as a 1000-bed institution, although it was built as a 1500-bed hospital.

Recognized as one of the most complete Army hospitals in the nation, the institution includes 25 wards, two detention wards, a psychopathic ward, X-ray, surgical, physiotherapy, mental and dental clinics.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. James A. Woodruff, First Corps Area commander, released a schedule for a draft call for 702 men who will be inducted from March 24 to April 2. These men will be sent to Ft. Devens for processing and then assigned to the field artillery replacement center at Ft. Bagg, N. C. Gen. Woodruff explained.

Most of them will come from Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Army in Drive To Banish Vice

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)

—In a determined drive to stamp out vice centers near army camps, the War Department soon will ask Congress for drastic legislation to place these areas under strict federal control, informed sources said today.

Bills now being prepared by War Secretary Stimson and Selective Service experts, if approved, will:

Make prostitution a federal offense and provide stern penalties for it.

Empower camp and post commanders to compel local civilian authorities to close down certain designated shady establishments.

Of the draftees who have been rejected for physical reasons so far, 6 per cent have been for venereal diseases, compared with only 1.3 per cent during the World War draft.

"To neglect defense is to invite disaster"

WHAT America today prepares to defend is something far more precious than so many miles of coastline, or a rich and fruitful expanse of territory.

It is a way of life, a fountain of human hopes, a form of opportunity for the individual which is unmatched elsewhere in the world.

Enlisted in the preparation of American defense as a first duty are no fewer than 35 General Motors plants now driving ahead on the production tasks assigned them in the national program.

Existing plants and equipment have been adapted wherever possible.

Elsewhere new additions are being rushed to completion, whole new factories have begun to arise so that the skill, experience and mass-production "know how" of General Motors people can be centered on serving the country's first and foremost need.

Meanwhile, it is not being forgotten that the industrial strength and continued vitality of the nation stem from full use of our productive resources.

So while naval and aircraft engines, military trucks and bomber parts, machine guns and artillery shells have right of way, the things that people need, that workmen build and dealers sell, yet continue to come from plants not adaptable to defense work.

This is in recognition that the foremost duty of all of us is to keep the country safe—the accompanying obligation is to keep it America.

Alfred P. Sloan
Chairman

In no fewer than 35 General Motors plants, activity in connection with defense production is well under way, with a large variety of products actually coming off the line at the present time.

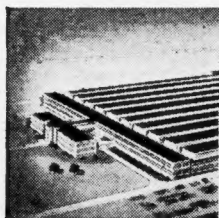

New construction made necessary by the defense program includes enlargement of existing facilities and complete new factories, either for our own or Government account, examples of which are shown below.

The busy plant of the Cleveland Diesel Engine Division has been enlarged to handle defense work.

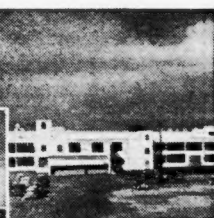

Production of machine guns will proceed upon the completion and equipping of this new plant of the Saginaw Steering Gear Division.

A new plant of 1,000,000 sq. ft. of floor space will go up to handle Buick Motor Division production, under license, of Pratt & Whitney air-cooled airplane engines.

Tooling is nearing completion at the new General Motors Forge plant in preparation for forging and machining 75 and 105 millimeter shells.

In this new plant of the Frigidaire Division, production of machine guns will soon get under way.

The latest expansion of the Allison Division plant is now rapidly approaching completion, and will result in increased production of liquid-cooled aircraft engines.

U. S. Experts Vision Compromise Peace

By KINGSBURY SMITH

(Copyright, 1941, by International News Service)

WASHINGTON, March 11—There is a rising tide of opinion in official quarters today that Great Britain alone cannot defeat Germany and that, if the British manage to hold out this summer, the European conflict eventually will end in a negotiated compromise peace.

Some of the highest authoritative sources in Washington in close touch with the European situation are convinced it will be impossible for the British to defeat the German army on the European continent even with all the help President Roosevelt plans to give Britain under the lease-lend bill. These sources hope American aid will enable the British to hold out against Germany until the German people realize it is impossible to defeat Britain and are willing to conclude a reasonable and honorable peace.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES AEF

Unless American aid to Britain should be extended to include manpower as well as materials, it is felt this country's help will not be sufficient to assure a decisive British military victory.

On the question of manpower, there does not appear to be the slightest disposition in Administration quarters from the President down to consider the possibility of sending an American army to Europe to help Britain defeat Germany. On the contrary, American officials generally appear vigorously opposed to any such move.

In the first place, it is felt that with Germany in control of the European continent, it would be a prolonged, costly and highly dangerous venture to send an American expeditionary force. There would be no sense in sending any large American force to England, it was said, because it would be just as difficult for an Anglo-American force to cross the English channel to France as it is expected to prove for the Germans to cross to England.

ROAD THROUGH BALKANS

An American land offensive against Germany in Europe would have to be made through the Mediterranean area, either via Italy or the Balkans. With Germany now in control of Italy and about to fortify the Balkan mountains, authoritative quarters believed it would prove a costly and questionable venture to try to break through that European back-door. It is this firm conviction that no American Army will be sent to Europe that leads to the belief the European conflict will end in a negotiated peace. If Great Britain, with American material aid, is able to hold out the next six months against German invasion attempts, it is believed the war eventually will be terminated by a "compromise peace."

However, it is considered highly probable that it may take another year, or even two, before both sides become reconciled to the realization that the war is a stalemate; that the present German army is supreme on the continent and the British navy unbeatable on the sea.

COMMUNISM ONLY GAINER

Once both sides become reconciled to this view and realize continuation of the war is leading only to general chaos, with Communism the likely victor, it is believed they will be willing to talk peace.

Authoritative quarters also hope the German people when they realize that Britain, backed by American material support, cannot be defeated, will eventually withdraw support from the Nazi regime and back a reichswehr (regular army) government that will be disposed to conclude a reasonable compromise peace.

Once that stage has been reached, it is thought there will be a fair chance of obtaining a general European peace settlement providing restoration of most of the conquered territories.

It also is hoped that when Germany realizes it will not be possible to defeat Britain, the Germans will be willing to join in world-wide disarmament and a sane policy of economic reconstruction.

HITLER'S WORLD-RULE AIMS

While a compromise peace is seen as the probable outcome of the conflict, authoritative quarters consider it an unfortunate paradox that the war must go on for some time before the opportunity presents itself for such a peace settlement. If Germany should conquer Britain now, the American government is convinced Hitler would seek domination of the entire world. Likewise, if Britain should seek a peace settlement now, it is felt Hitler would regard it as a sign of weakness and try to impose a dictated peace that would leave him free for world conquest.

Therefore, the view prevails in authoritative quarters that the United States must give Britain sufficient help to enable it to hold out against Germany until both sides fully recognize the futility of fighting any longer.

Italian Losses To Greeks Heavy

ATHENS, March 11 (AP)—Dispatches from the central front today said Italian losses in dead and wounded since a major battle developed Friday have been the heaviest suffered by the Fascists in their Albanian campaign.

A Royal Air Force communiqué said motor transport concentrations and Italian camps on the Glava-Buzi road were attacked yesterday.

The Greek air force was credited with heavily bombing and machine-gunning Italian positions. The Italians began their drive Sunday, the Greek command said, "but has not been able to score any successes whatever."

British Claim Ethiopian Gains

CAIRO, Egypt, March 11 (AP)—A brigade commander, a resident commissioner, their staffs and "many hundreds of additional prisoners" have been captured by British and native forces in deep drives into Ethiopia, British general headquarters declared today.

Imperial forces in western Ethiopia "have captured the Afelu escarpment and are now advancing toward Asosa," its communiqué said, and farther east "patriot forces have captured the town of Dambracha and are continuing their pursuit of the Italian columns retreating toward Debra-Markos."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 8 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging headaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling and puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or steady poisoning with nagging and burning sometimes shows these poisons are doing something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Free Enterprise Aid Outlined

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Chartering of national corporations by the federal government as one move in a fourfold effort to re-establish and encourage free private enterprise" was recommended to the monopoly committee today by its chairman, Sen. O'Hanley (D) of Wyoming.

Also proposed were:
 "Effective and thorough enforcement of the antitrust laws to maintain competition."
 "Encouragement of new business and small enterprise by revision of the tax law."
 "A national conference of organizations representative of business, labor, agriculture and consumers to . . . coordinate public thought and action on (economic) objectives."

Free Divorcee In Tax Evasion

Mrs. Doris Irene Wentworth, 35-year-old Brighton divorcee, was found not guilty in Brighton district court today on a charge of possessing cigarettes with intent to sell them without a license.

With her in court as co-defendant was Arnold Alford, 25, of Walnut ave., Revere, who pleaded guilty to charges of illegal possession of cigarettes with intent to sell and was fined $25 by Judge Thomas H. Connelly.

The attractive divorcee, stylishly attired, did not testify. She simply entered a plea of not guilty, which the court sustained after Alford and state tax agents had testified.

O'LEARY TELLS GRAND JURY DETAILS OF EMERY MURDER

While nearly a score of other witnesses waited their turn, Associate Medical Examiner Cornelius O'Leary was crossexamined for most of the morning with the grand jury probing the murder of Robert Emery, Natick realty dealer.

Emery, 26-year-old father of two children, was found dead Jan. 21 in the Brighton st., West End, apartment of blonde Mrs. Ruth Steadman, formerly of Needham, who is charged with poisoning and garroting him.

Dr. O'Leary's session today with the grand jury was his second in the case, he having been the final witness yesterday.

Waiting again today for the call to go before the grand jury was Emery's young widow, Mrs. Ruth Emery, also a blonde.

From the progress thus far in the inquiry, which began yesterday, officials estimated at least two more days would be required to complete the evidence.

$50,000 COST TO HUB

The week-end snow storm added another $50,000 item for Boston taxpayers to take care of, it was revealed today by Public Works Commr. George Hyland. At the same time praise was heaped on city officials for speedy clearing of streets in downtown Boston.

12 Driven Out In Quincy Fire

Twelve persons in four Quincy families were driven from their homes early today by a fire which swept a large dwelling in Hixbrook rd., Montclair.

The crackling of flames in the basement aroused the occupants, who escaped in their night clothing. Shooting up partitions and pipe recesses, the fire quickly reached the roof.

Those forced to flee included the families of George A. Hirtle, George Ladd, Arthur W. Nelson, Jr., and George A. Anderson.

Fire officials blamed defective wiring. The damage was estimated at $3500.

127 Billions Cash Aid To British, F. D. Aim

idly shed with plans to put the British aid program into full and immediate operation, began a conference with the ranking officials of the War and Navy Departments immediately after informing the delegates from Capitol Hill of the huge appropriation he planned to ask.

With the executive emphasizing speed, Rep. Woodrum (D.) of Virginia indicated an attempt would be made to match it in Congress. He said a bill would be introduced tomorrow, committee hearings would begin Thursday and he hoped to have the bill before the House Monday.

KEEP UP DEFENSES

Byrne told reporters the proposal to permit use of $1,300-

600,000 from the new appropriation to replace existing equipment up to that amount was designed to prevent impairment of domestic defenses.

He said that "the net new money" to be provided under the program for aid to Britain thus amounted to $5,700,000,000 plus $1,300,000,000 for the replacement of American defenses.

He said that this country "can provide substantial immediate aid, because, up to $1,300,000,000, we can turn over equipment which is already on hand and ready to go."

Opposition senators have announced they would attempt to earmark for specific countries any funds appropriated, but Byrnes declared that "would be unreasonable."

AID FOES PLAN FIGHT

A score of the senators who opposed the British aid measure met for more than an hour in the office of Sen. Johnson (R.) of California, during the morning.

Johnson, to whom others in the group referred questioners, said that only a "pleasant talk" had resulted and that "no decisions" had been reached.

"Nothing transpired," he declared. He added that further meetings of the group might be held "within the next few weeks."

As the final two hours of congressional debate on the measure began in the House, Chairman Bloom (D.) of New York of the foreign affairs committee gave a 10-minute technical explanation of Senate amendments.

MARTIN EXPLAINS VOTE

Then, amid applause from both Republicans and Democrats, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, Republican floor leader, walked to the well of the chamber and said he would vote for the Senate revisions. He declared they were "inadequate" but "an improvement" over the form in which the legislation passed the House.

"I voted against the least-aid

"U. S. IN DANGER"—Appearing before the House Judiciary Committee considering proposed bills which seek to regulate strikes and other labor difficulties in the United States, William C. Bullitt (left), former U. S. ambassador to France, warned that there is a "striking parallel" between conditions in this country today and those in France before her collapse. He's talking to Rep. Hutton Summers of Texas (above).

bill because I opposed the granting of powers to the President, which I believed should be retained by the Congress," Martin said. "I feared the bill as written would bring us nearer to war. My position is that respect remains unchanged."

But, he added, the majority in both branches had decided otherwise and there would be no further chance to consider changes.

Martin said that the nation stood united for liberty at home and shared in a "common desire" to see it prevail in all parts of the world, adding:

"We may differ among ourselves, but there is no division in our loyalty to our country or our determination to protect the security of our people. We are one people; an undaunted people determined that real Americanism shall not disappear from the earth."

As Martin sat down members on both sides stood and applauded.

nounced, the British air force has destroyed 4250 German and 1100 Italian airplanes and lost fewer than 1800 aircraft of our own."

"Leaving out of account reserves, we have destroyed half of the Italian first line," Sir Archibald said.

"We have certainly destroyed much more than half the first line with which Germany entered the war."

He made the statement in asking the House to approve a "token" budget of $100 ($400) for the air force. The real amount is kept secret.

"I hope the House will not have long to wait for further news of American aircraft which are now in service or coming into service overseas and in all four operational commands of the RAF at home," Sir Archibald said.

"I cannot count on the House my own belief that the war is about to enter a grimmer phase. It will be no easy task to defeat Nazi Germany, but it can and will be done and my confidence is primarily based on the achievements of the RAF and sister services in the last 12 months."

FASTER WARPLANES

Sir Archibald declared that new models of Spitfires and Hurricanes now in service have stronger engines which have considerably increased their speed and provided ability for them to fight at much greater altitudes and that heavier armament has increased their fire power.

The new Hawker and Tornado, he said, have engines "nearly twice the horsepower of fighters which bore the brunt of the battle of Britain and can carry still heavier armament and yet obtain speeds well in excess of 400 miles an hour."

And, he added, "other engines of even greater power are coming on." He expressed confidence that British technical superiority "will certainly be maintained throughout the year 1941."

He pictured the American Brewster and Curtiss fighters as "comparable with our single-engine types."

PRaises U. S. Planes

The American Martin Maryland medium bomber has been outperforming Italian fighters, he said, and the Douglas Boston medium bomber has proved so fast and maneuverable it is being used as a night fighter.

The four-motored consolidated land plane and the consolidated patrol planes also received his praise.

In addition to the vast formations of sailors Britain has trained forces of fliers and soldiers to man immediately a great flood of air planes and guns expected from the United States.

A vast pool of manpower, well-informed sources said, is ready to pour into battle as soon as the United States opens stores of equipment under the aid-to-Britain measure.

WAIT ONLY "TOOLS"

The British have distributed all available material among as many men as possible so all could familiarize themselves with the use of the weapons.

That is one reason why more American planes have not actually been used in combat, informed sources said.

These sources asserted: "The British want a pool of recruits ready to handle the equipment they are building in increasing amounts themselves, and to be prepared for any sudden flood from any source."

Morals Charges Add To Woes of Gang

Police said they called themselves the "Capt. Blood Gang," but only the faces of three alleged burglars were red today in municipal court as charges piled up against them, including morals charges involving young girls.

A fourth defendant, Anthony Francoosa, 35, owner of a building in South Margit st., North End, where considerable loot allegedly was recovered, was arraigned on a charge of allowing his premises to be used by the gang for immoral purposes.

And a 17-year-old girl, Elvira Pereira of Saratoga pl., East Boston, was sent over to juvenile court because Judge Joseph Donovan learned that her alleged indiscretions with the gang were committed at the house when she was only 15.

According to police, Elvira wasn't a member of the gang but there were other girls, some even younger, who are sweethearts of the defendants charged with burglary and who accompanied these defendants on many of their jobs. Charged with breaking and entering in the night time—but with other charges to come, police said—these three defendants were Armando Rizzo, 22, of Allen st., West End, and Carmine Capone, 21, of Endicott st., and John Leveroni, 21, of Hanover st., both in the North End.

And Carmine Capone, a head of the Captain Blood Gang, the police said, was called Capt. Blood himself.

According to the authorities, their arrest cleans up scores of burglaries in the West End and Beacon Hill apartment districts, as well as many breaks and thefts in East Boston.

GIRL TO BE QUIZZED

Last Saturday they were arraigned in East Boston court and held in $3000 each.

Today Rizzo and Capone were held in another $3000 each, while Leveroni and Francoosa were held in $1000 each, all on a continuance to March 19.

Meanwhile Special Officers Dennis Mahoney and Andrew Mullen of Joy st. station will go to Milford to interview a 15-year-old blonde girl declared to be the sweetheart of one of the trio.

March 17th Set for Holiday

The long fight to make March 17th a legal holiday in Suffolk County today appeared headed for gubernatorial approval — and in time for this year's South Boston dual observance of the birth of Ireland's patron saint and evacuation of Boston by the British.

It was confidently reported that Gov. Saltonstall would sign the measure, amended in the Senate to give a holiday only to school children and public employes in Suffolk County. Under its terms, Boston stores will not be asked to close, nor will state employes be given a holiday.

At the same time, it was announced that about 1200 members of the 101st Infantry from Camp Edwards will march in South Boston's Evacuation Day parade. The announcement was made after a conference between Mayor Tobin and John S. Flaherty, chief marshal of the parade.

The 68th Artillery, numbering 1800 others, together with $1,000,000 worth of new fighting equipment also will be in the line of march.

Meanwhile, city workers today began removing all snow from streets which are included in the parade route. Street department officials promised to have the route in excellent shape long before parade day.

City and state will co-operate in transporting the 101st to and from Camp Edwards by special train as a result of a decision of the Army to bear no part of transportation costs.

Boston Jewry To Mark Holiday

Greater Boston Jewry are preparing to observe the joyous holiday of Purim, the Feast of Lots, which begins at sundown tomorrow and ends Thursday night.

The observance commemorates deliverance of Jews from destruction planned by Haman, minister of the King of Persia.

On Friday night in synagogues and temples, worshippers will hear the story of how Queen Esther interceded and disclosed the plot to the King, thus saving the Jews.

To the Jews, the holiday indicates a deep belief in the ultimate victory of justice. After the holiday,

Jewish community centers and organizations plan numerous week-end festivals.

PLAN OF AXIS TO SELL U. S. DETAINED SHIPS FOR TRANSFER TO BRITAIN IS REVEALED

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 11 (INS)—A sensational secret plan under which Germany and Italy might turn over hundreds of thousands of tons of freighters tied up in Western Hemisphere ports for resale to besieged Britain was disclosed to this correspondent today on unimpeachable authority.

An unofficial American mission left the United States for Germany three weeks ago to explore the feasibility of negotiating purchase of the Axis cargo carriers now in United States and Latin American ports, this authority stated.

The mission, composed of American business men, plan to consult with authorities both in Berlin and Rome. While the mission does not carry with it government authority, it was stated that the object of the mission is known to officials in Washington.

The proposal for sale of the tied up freighters to American interests, moreover, was said to have originated in high official German quarters.

NEED U. S. DOLLAR CREDITS
As fantastic as the proposal sounds, with Germany seeking to strangle Britain by an all-out undersea, surface raiders and air offensive against Atlantic shipping, the Axis Powers were represented as being quite willing to turn loose their freighters immobilized in North and South America since the war began, in order to obtain desperately needed American dollar credits.

These dollar credits, it was stated, would presumably be used to extend Axis trade with Latin America and to obtain essential war materials from the Latin America—both aimed at tying the Latin Americas closer to the Axis.

Germany and Italy, as well as Japan, have recently converted large American holdings into cash and sent the dollars to Latin America, it was learned. One $1,000,000 deposit was recently made by Germany in Cuba. Another $8,000,000 deposit was made by Japan in Argentina to finance war and goods purchases.

Germany and Italy were said to have adopted a highly realistic attitude toward the question of their tied-up shipping. The vessels have been immobilized now for 18 months. Attempts of German ships to run the British blockade resulted in the greater number being overtaken by British cruisers and either scuttled to prevent capture, sunk or seized.

FEAR EVENTUAL LOSS
Germany, it was stated, is so confident of being able to sink the larger part of shipping going to the British Isles this spring and summer with its fleets of new small-tonnage submarines and dive-bombers that it cares little if the vessels are obtained by Britain.

Tied up in the Western Hemisphere, the ships would be of no use to the Axis for the duration of the war, anyway, while the acquisition of American dollars would be of immediate aid in extending the Axis program in Latin America.

Both Berlin and Rome were said also to visualize the possible permanent loss of these ships through seizure in the event the United States should become involved in the war on Britain's side.

The greater part of Germany's immobilized shipping, it was learned, is in Latin American ports, but heavy Italian tonnage is tied up in the United States.

Should the unofficial American mission purchase the vessels, it was presumed they would seek to resell them to the American Maritime Commission either for transfer to Britain under the lease-lend measure, or for use on American lines, making possible release of other American tonnage to Britain.

French Thai Treaty Initialed in Tokyo

TOKYO, March 11 (INS)—A peace treaty between French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam), negotiated under Japanese mediation and ending months of border warfare, was initialed in Tokyo today.

Conclusion of the treaty after lengthy negotiations and two extensions of the armistice between the disputants was hailed by Tokyo circles as a smashing diplomatic triumph for Japan which would promote "stability" in the Far East.

PROVISIONS LISTED

A Japanese communique on terms of the agreement listed these provisions:

1—France cedes to Thailand the district around the town of Pak-Lay.

2—France cedes a slice of northern and northwestern Cambodia.

3—A small area across the Mekong river from Stung-Treng would be retained by Indo-China.

4—All these ceded territories become demilitarized zones in which French nationals and Indo-Chinese natives will have full rights to go and come or keep their homes and businesses.

5—Thailand guarantees to respect and afford facilities for preservation of worship at Mausoleums of the royal house of Luang-Prabang of Indo-China which lie across the Mekong from the town of Luang-Prabang in territory to go to Thailand.

6—Where the Mekong marks the frontier, the river channel shall be the border, except that the islands of Khong and Khone above the great rapids north of Stung-Treng shall be under Thai sovereignty but be administered jointly by France and Thailand. Existing French establishments on the islands shall remain in French possession.

Apparently there was no provision for giving Thailand a corridor north to China such as had been suggested by some French sources as an alternative to larger concessions in Cambodia.

WPA Erecting 1100 Army, Navy Buildings

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—WPA reported today it is working on approximately 1100 new buildings for the War and Navy departments and allied agencies, and is reconstructing or modernizing 2800 others.

Of the new buildings about 400 are barracks, officers' quarters or mess halls. The WPA already has built or improved 15,000 buildings on Army and Navy reservations and on the property of State National Guard and Naval Reserve units.

nation," one said. "The signatories take much greater joy in seeing conditions prevail which make an invocation of its terms unnecessary than in its becoming effective in all particulars."

The first direct comment on the United States Senate's passage of the aid-to-Britain measure came in a foreign press conference, in two observations by authorized quarters.

FRANKFURTER BLAMED

The first was to the effect that Justice Felix Frankfurter, a Vienna-born Jew, helped President Roosevelt draft the bill.

"This indicates that the bill is offensive rather than defensive," the sources asserted, "because the Jews hope to regain the position in Europe which they fortunately lost."

The second was that "Bullitt (William C. Bullitt, former ambassador to France) himself is primarily to blame if it were true that a greater danger threatens the United States than ever before in its history."

"If his policies had not prevailed there would be not even a suspicion of such danger," it was said.

6-Hour Nazi Raid Blasts Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., March 11 (AP)—The mightiest assault of the war on this important south coast naval station was made overnight by the German air force. For six hours, Nazi fliers unloaded high explosive and incendiary bombs, setting fires that raged uncontrolled for hours.

Four of the raiders were shot down, while in London three Nazi planes were destroyed.

A bright moon and the glare of fires started by the first wave of attackers aided the Luftwaffe. More than 30 fires sent flames skyward.

One of the city's oldest shopping centers was badly damaged. Buildings destroyed included churches, a synagogue, a service hotel and a sailor's club. Two postoffices were damaged and fires were started in lumber yards.

Three persons were killed in one shelter and there were two casualties when a hit was scored on another. Rescue squads dug into the debris of wrecked homes and brought out many who had been pinned in the wreckage.

British Raids Fire Cologne

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Large fires were started in the German Rhineland city of Cologne in an overnight British raid, the air ministry declared today.

Docks at Boulogne, Cherbourg and Brest, along the Nazi-held "invasion coast," also were bombed, its communiqué said, while RAF fighters carried out offensive patrols over airfields in northern France.

The Hohenzollern bridge in Cologne was mentioned as a target of the British raiders and the communiqué said large fires were started by bombs "seen to burst on the approaches."

Many of the fires in Cologne, it added, "were observed in the industrial center and there were several explosions."

The Hohenzollern bridge is an important Rhine river crossing for both automobiles and trains. Its approach on the western side of the river is close to the main Cologne station.

Boston Woman Gets Her M. P. Seat by April

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Pretty sparkling-eyed Mrs. Beatrice Rathbone became the second American-born woman member of the House of Commons today by virtue of her unopposed nomination in Bodmin district.

As soon as Commons rules allow, in two or three weeks, she will take the seat of her late husband, Flight Lieut. John Rankin Rathbone, killed in December on his first flight over Germany.

Born in Boston 30 years ago, Mrs. Rathbone will serve in Commons as a Conservative, like her husband. Under a political truce, no Labor candidate was nominated.

She became the 14th woman member of Commons. The other American-born member is Lady Astor.

Mrs. Rathbone, mother of two children now in the United States, always has been keenly interested in politics and made many speeches for her husband.

"I believe I know 6000 persons in our district," she said. "It's a big district, and soon I hope to know everyone by personal visit."

Paul Calls Slav Aides To Weigh Nazi Order

BELGRADE, March 11 (INS)—Faced with a German demand that Yugoslavia enter the Axis-Japanese military alliance, Regent Prince Paul today summoned an extraordinary meeting of the Yugoslavian crown council for tomorrow.

The cabinet, other dignitaries and representatives of the general staff will participate. Political circles expected the momentous meeting would be followed by a definite statement clarifying Yugoslavian relations with Germany and Italy.

Departure of Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Marcovic for Germany was fixed for Friday.

Despite insistent reports to the contrary, informed quarters said that Germany had not demanded outright Yugoslavian adherence to the Axis. The visit will merely produce a Yugoslavian neutrality declaration plus a non-aggression and friendship pact with the Reich, it was said.

Meanwhile, the army general staff rushed military preparations. It was estimated more than 300,000 reservists have been called up since March 1.

Nazis Say Greeks Must Yield

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 11 (INS)

—A German-dictated peace agreement between Italy and Greece may be achieved before the end of next week, German authorities in Sofia declared today.

These quarters predicted an armistice that might avert the necessity of a German military invasion of Greece from southern Bulgaria.

One source close to Axis officials said the Greeks already have made certain counter-proposals to those delivered by the German minister to Athens.

One of these Greek stipulations, it was stated, was that Italian troops be forbidden to enter Greece when peace terms are agreed upon and that German troops be assigned to carry out whatever occupation of Greek territory is deemed necessary.

German quarters in Sofia said German domination of the Balkans is merely a "matter of days"—save for European Turkey.

They contended that British influence in southeastern Europe now is all but eliminated.

George Rendel, British minister to Sofia, departed with his staff last night aboard a special train. The British envoy traveled in King Boris' private coach.

United States Minister George W. Earle accompanied Rendel to the border. The American legation formally took charge of British interests in Bulgaria.

LETTERS FROM ENGLAND

This is another in a series of letters from Britain to friends and relatives in Greater Boston.

To: John Murray,
7 Thorndike st.,
West Somerville,
Mass.

From: Miss Patricia Murray,
108 Foxteth st.,
Liverpool,
England.

Dear John:

As I have not had any answer to my last letter, written about four months ago, I am writing again hoping that you are all keeping well over there. Glad to say that everybody so far is safe and sound here.

We are having a break from the air raids so far owing to the bad weather. We have had a heavy fall of snow this week-end, so Jerry will just have to wait till everything is cleared up for him.

There is no change here with us. I am still working at the same job "doing my bit" and Maggie is now working at the Women's Hospital as a ward-maid.

Albert has been home since Christmas from "Somewhere out East" where he got a touch of malaria. Now the lucky devil is stationed near home.

Bessie still gets the cards from Bill pleading for food. But lately he seems to be more contented, having got a job with little pay. They are talking here about compulsory calling up of men and women for fire-fighting service.

Can you imagine me tackling an incendiary bomb? But everyone here is in the fight to win this war. We have all got to "go to it."

I'm sure Ma would make a fine fire-fighter (I'm always pulling her leg about it) because when the raids are on she's as cool as a cucumber.

So I have no more to say now only as the Irishman would say—If you don't get this letter write me and let me know.

Love to all.
Your kid sister,
Patty.

Brandenburg Rites Thursday

Funeral services for Howard W. Brandenburg, proof reader of the Boston Evening American since 1909, will be held Thursday at 3 p. m. from the Short & Williamson Funeral Parlors on Brighton ave., Allston.

He would have marked his 81st birthday a week from today. He resided at 1131 Commonwealth ave., Allston.

Born in Flushing, O., March 18, 1860, his great-grandfather was a Maryland soldier in the Revolution. Moving to Wisconsin, where he spent most of his early life, he worked on many Middle West papers and later on several New York papers before coming to Boston in 1902.

Well known as a sportsman and fisherman, he was one of the first to introduce strip casting in Sudbury river, where he bagged as many as 40 black bass in a single day.

Only 5 Days Left To Pay Income Tax

There are only five days left in which to pay federal income taxes for 1940, Collector of Internal Revenue Thomas B. Hassett reminded taxpayers today.

He also reported an increase of $3,447,417 in income tax receipts last month compared with February, 1940. This represents a boost of 62 per cent, which he attributed to the lowering of exemptions for married and single men, to the 10 per cent defense tax and to increased earnings of taxpayers generally.

No Reducing Drugs
No Exercises
No Massage

Men and women all over this country are reporting remarkable results in losing weight. Many report losing 20 pounds a month and more. They are following the Plan of Dr. Edward Parrish, noted physician. Former Health Officer, State of New York, Surgeon-in-Chief, Medical Staff, U. S. Army, Editor, Lecturer.

Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan makes reducing a pleasure because it allows you to EAT PLENTY, requires no exercises. Absolutely safe, too, because it calls for no reducing drugs, no loss of vitality. Here is Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan EXACTLY as given over the air to millions: For lunch take 2 teaspoonsful of CAL-PAR in a glass of fruit juice, or any beverage. Take nothing else for lunch except a cup of coffee if desired. For breakfast and dinner EAT AS YOU USUALLY DO. Don't cut out fatty, starchy foods—just cut down on them. Try Dr. Parrish's Reducing Plan for one week! You and your friends will be amazed at the vast improvement to your figure. Most overweight cases should be helped by Dr. Parrish's plan. CAL-PAR is not a reducing drug. It is a special purpose food supplying calcium, iron, phosphorus, vitamin D, diet a can today.

EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1931

Major Accused As Slayer of Earl of Erroll

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, March 11 (AP)—A charge of murder was made today against newly married Maj. Sir Delves Broughton in the mysterious death of the Earl of Erroll, hereditary high constable of Scotland.

When Lord Erroll was found dead Jan. 24, it was first believed he had been killed in an automobile accident, but officers later established that a revolver bullet killed him.

Sir Delves, who fought with the Irish Guards in the World War, previously had testified he and three other persons had dined with the earl the night before the shooting.

No evidence was presented against the 37-year-old veteran and the case was adjourned to March 19.

At an inquiry, Feb. 28, a government pathologist testified that two shots had been fired at the 39-year-old earl. After his death, the pathologist continued, the body was taken from the driver's seat of the automobile in which it was found and placed on the front floorboards.

According to a physician's testimony, death was caused by a bullet which entered the head behind the left ear and scarcely could have been a self-inflicted wound.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted Filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

quarrelled was not divulged. Police learned, according to Capt. O'Connell, that after the vault Appellet went to the home of a friend and borrowed a .22-caliber rifle.

"Obviously, we must find out why Appellet wanted the gun," said the captain.

Mrs. Appellet, he said, was employed as a drugstore waitress and lived with her daughter and mother, Mrs. Ida Koonitz. Her divorce suit is pending.

The shooting occurred as Lorenz was returning to his apartment with bags of groceries after a shopping expedition. Although the neighborhood is normally a busy one, no one could be found who heard or witnessed the shooting. In the absence of any witness who would admit hearing shots, police theorized the killer's weapon was equipped with a silencer.

NOTIFIES 3 BROTHERS
Mrs. Aiken lives in the Fuller pl. home of Dr. Erwin J. Raiz, cartographer of the Institute of Geographic Exploration at Harvard, and has been a free lance writer for magazines and newspapers since her divorce from the poet.

Inclined toward a political motive for her brother's murder, she said that while he had no formal education beyond high school he was studious and had always been strident and reserved.

The family came originally from Milwaukee, she said, and the chemist was born there and was graduated from North Division High School.

As soon as Mrs. Aiken was informed of his death she communicated with three other brothers—Richard Lorenz of Watertown, Ct.; John Lorenz of Wauwatosa, Wis.; and George Lorenz, county clerk in Milwaukee.

She has also communicated with two aunts, Mrs. Stephen Doyle and Miss Margaret Mich., both living at 6468 Dante ave., Chicago.

"Did you have any relations with Clem at the hotel?" counsel asked Mrs. Patterson.

Hanging her head she replied demurely: "Yes, we had relations. That was the first time, however."

She further testified she stayed at the hotel for about 10 days and then returned to Cleveland.

IN LOVE WITH HIM

On June 30, 1931, she testified, she returned to Boston. She had phoned him en route.

"I've got a big surprise for you," she said Clem told her, but refused to say what the surprise was.

Q—What were your feelings towards Clem at that time? A—I was very much in love with him.

Q—What were his feelings towards you? A—He said he was just wild about me and declared that our lives were going to be all changed.

She said he again discussed marriage with her and promised to marry her "before the summer is over."

"He took me to his summer home in Cotuit," Mrs. Patterson related, "and introduced me to all the merchants there as the lady I have been talking so much about." Then he opened charge accounts for me at all the business places in the town.

Previously, Clem had testified to "seeing much" of Mrs. Patterson during the years 1925-26-27.

Questioned whether Mrs. Patterson had lived at his Ballard st. home on Christmas Day, 1930, Clem said his recollection was that she had been there with relatives.

Also questioned whether he saw her in the fall of 1930, he asserted: "I didn't see her, but she came to see me. I wasn't seeing her unless she called to see me."

THE Women's Bureau of the Federal Department of Labor does not believe hat designs should be as varied as the flowers in a mid-Summer garden or as numerous as the trees in the forest.

Economic planners in that feminine-minded branch of the government, headed by Secretary Frances Perkins, are of the opinion that headgear can be standardized and greatly simplified.

Wherefore their latest report calls for a general stabilization of conditions in the hat industry through a reduction in the number of styles and elimination of the more freakish models.

The first to question the wisdom of so drastic a change in American life is Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President.

"It might be less trouble, but it would be awfully dull," she says. "Besides, who is going to say what styles are wild?"

Unless we miss our guess, the great majority of women will applaud the First Lady's view. The modern hat is something more than head covering.

A woman does not wear it chiefly to deflect the sun's rays or to keep the falling rain from wetting her hair.

She is more interested in enhancing her natural loveliness. She carefully considers her height, weight and features.

Then she selects and buys a creation which she hopes will make her look at least ten times better than Nature intended.

That is why American women are the most beautiful in the world, and the most youthful.

And that is also why any attempt by bureaucrats or others to regiment the hat industry is doomed from the start.

"ENTER POLITICS" is the advice Dr. Kenneth C. M. Sills, president of Bowdoin College, gives to undergraduates.

"It is small use talking about the value of democracy if those who have profited much will not raise a hand to make democracy work.

"In this country youth cannot do that unless youth takes part in practical politics and unless youth realizes that our whole system of government depends upon participation in its functions on the part of all intelligent citizens."

We share Dr. Sills' opinion; youth should take a more active part in governmental affairs.

Old fogies pick quarrels with other nations and declare wars upon them.

But the old fogies always expect youth to do the fighting and the dying.

For this reason alone, it is right and proper for young men not only in Maine but in every other State to seek votes, get elected to office and force the merchants of death to take a back seat.

Democracy would also be better served if women, particularly women who have brought children into the world, united and demanded the recognition that belongs to them.

Youth and mothers, working together, might force some of our ancient and decrepit Senators and Representatives to enlist in the Army or Navy and get a personal taste of the conflict they seem so anxious to stir up for other people.

NEW ENGLAND GRIEVES for the twelve firemen who died yesterday in the burning of Brockton's Strand Theater and hopes that the twenty-one others who were injured will have a speedy recovery.

The courage of these men in the face of death is best told by the Rev. Lawrence P. Morrisroe, the priest who defied danger to bring the last rites of the Catholic Church to those who were trapped in the building.

"I shook hands with Lieutenant Buckley," says Father Morrisroe. "He was buried up to his waist in the debris and trapped there. He was looking up at me. He said: 'Father, all the rest of the boys around me—don't forget them.'"

We have read many accounts of bravery from the fronts of the current European war.

But none touched us more deeply, or made us feel prouder of our own country, which produces the most valiant men of all.

On The Side

"I WANT to be an actress," writes a Boston girl. "Can you suggest a professional name for me?" How about calling yourself Maggie Devine? And don't make it Margaret Devine, either.

... How soon should a baby be able to say "Mama" or "Papa"? Gosh, lady, couldn't you ask Dr. Dafoe? I tried to get the answer to this from Mrs. Marion Story of Bakersfield, Cal., who has 17 children, but couldn't reach her. So I asked Bing Crosby. He said: "Oh, in about eight months." And added with pardonable pride: "Two of mine said 'Papa' first." Is said only 26 per cent of women marry for love. Shouldn't the other 74 per cent be ashamed of themselves? Maybe many of the 74 per cent mentioned couldn't find love. But they had to get a husband because they couldn't stand being patronizingly asked if married women: "What, not married yet?" Most women when called upon to make a choice will marry for love regardless of the economic situation. Well, 60 per cent of them, anyhow.

PLEASE NOTE: "You're always telling what you have for breakfast," writes a Chelsea subscriber. "Why don't you mention lunch?" Sir, I'd rather not think of what I have for lunch. All I am given is a fruit salad, some whole wheat toast and a cup of tea. On my birthday I get ice cream with this, though. ... "Who is America's most famous wealthy bachelor?" asks a Baltimore girl. Will you settle for Robert "Believe It or Not" Ripley?

ROBERT "BELIEVE IT OR NOT" RIPLEY
America's Most Famous Wealthy Bachelor!

or Not? Ripley? ... I think the best taxi tariff system is the zone system. Twenty-five cents for Zone 1, 35 cents for Zone 2 and so on. This does away with the meter getting on the nerves of the passengers. To regular taxi traffic in large cities the Mexico City system should be followed. Have blue, yellow and red cabs. First eight hours of the day none but blue cabs allowed on the streets, second none but yellow, third none but red. The hours of the shifts could be changed weekly. ... Note domestic science article: "How to Make Veal Interesting." Better look this up, lady. Wouldn't it be a big moment in your life if after dinner some night your husband said: "Darling, that was very interesting veal." However, what domestic science probably needs is an article titled: "How to Make Liver Interesting."

ASIDES: Note a news item reference to a young fellow: "He had a job as a carpenter at $12 a day." Boy, that's not so bad. 12 snappers a day, and that's not counting chances for overtime and double time. I never could be a carpenter. I'd soon run out of thumbs. If I try to hang a picture it's a triple threat. I'll smash my thumb, fall off the ladder or knock a hole in the wall.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

GOLDEN BEACH, Fla., Monday

—From March 12 to March 18, the Girl Scouts will celebrate their 29th birthday. All over this country, groups of Girl Scouts are preparing through their various programs to meet the emergencies of the future. The points which they emphasize in their training, are all points which make for better citizens in any community.

Through their camps, they teach the building of health and the value of out door life. They develop habits of self-reliance and resourcefulness which are a safeguard in their everyday lives. They learn the value of conservation for the country and for the individual at home.

Recreation is emphasized as a part of healthy, normal living and, above everything else, they feel they are a necessary part of any community in which they live, because they give service. They have already offered many hours of work to the nation in the defense program and probably have learned the first and most important lesson, that defense begins at home. The better you make your community, the better the defense of the nation will be.

THEIR contribution to Pan-American friendship through the encampment held last summer, where 13 countries of the Western Hemisphere were represented, was really a significant achievement. It will be followed up again this year by a similar gathering.

I think all of us can be proud of what this organization and its members are accomplishing, and I want to wish them many happy returns on their birthday.

We spent a fairly lazy day in the sun yesterday and read aloud Mr. Archibald MacLeish's little book, "The American Cause." He has the gift of words which sing as you read, and a way of expressing his beliefs which will be a help to the nation.

I particularly liked his idea that the artists of the country can best make their contribution to the nation in constructive ways which lead to permanent benefits for the whole people.

LAST EVENING, at the Naval Air Station, we went to a special showing of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Denis' picture, "Dark Rapture." I had seen it before, but found it no less exciting and interesting than when they showed it at the White House. They are born adventurers, and it seems to agree with them,

They had fallen in love with Florida and have bought two pieces of property here. One is known as the Indian Trading Post and has a bit of real jungle land on it. There they will gradually accumulate the animals which they have already collected, but which are now scattered around the country.

They also intended to bring back others from future trips.

BARRYMORE FINDS NEW ROMANCE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 11—John Barrymore is confessing to a new, serious romance. The light of his life now is Olive, the midjet lady now at Earl Carroll's, who is billed as the world's most perfectly formed tiny woman . . . Barrymore confessed his problem to Gene Fowler, his Beatrice Fairfax. "Are you serious?" asked the incredulous adviser . . . "Yes, I'm serious," Barrymore sighed. "And don't forget one big advantage I'll have—I figured that when it's over the love-pain's proportionately less."

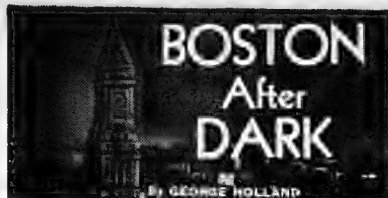

THELMA SCHNEE of "The Corn Is Green" sent an opening-night wire to a friend who has a simple walk-on role in "Five Alarm Waltz." The wire to the walk-on read: "Don't stand there. Say something" . . . The Cafe Society concert at Carnegie Hall on April 26 will be for the benefit of the Musicians' Union Medical Fund . . . Vivien Leigh has asked for the color portrait of her, used for the cover of a magazine. It was sent to her in London. "Maybe," replied the British star, "it will be the last one I'll ever take" . . . Charles LeMaire's new fashion shop will be designed by Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein . . . Bobby Gleason's Bronx gym for prize fighters has a sign, "No War Talk." Gleason explained it: "I don't want to start arguments in this place."

TWO BELGIAN REFUGEES

sat in a cafe discussing the tragedies which have befallen their lives, their country and their friends . . . "By the way," asked the first, "whatever became of Vander from our home town?" ROSALIND RUSSELL . . . The second informed: "He committed suicide—over a love affair" . . . "Oven's love affair?" repeated the first refugee. "I wish I had such a light mind" . . . Dave Kleckner, proprietor of the defunct Dave's Blue Room, is making another try—at a new Blue Room he'll open on West 52d street. "This time I'll have something special," Dave vows. "I'll have Borscht on draught" . . . Rosalind Russell's newest picture promises to be her best . . . Bill Seiter, the producer, purchased the story from Allen Rivkin. Warner Bros. has just increased its budget for "Highway West," the movie Rivkin wrote at that studio.

H. H. LEWIS, the Missouri farmhand-poet who won the Harriet Monroe Lyric award in 1938, has been living on the $100 prize money for the last three years. For the fourth time, he has his application in for a Guggenheim Fellowship. He needs the money to buy eyeglasses . . . A horse, instead of the customary portion, will be guest of honor at a cafe soon. The horse is "Jack Stutz," named in honor of the proprietor of the Gamecock cafe, who will tender the party for his namesake, at his cafe . . . At the mass meeting staged in Minneapolis by the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, the presiding officer was Prof. Charles J. Turk, president of Macalester College. In introducing former Sen. Ernest Gibson, head of the Committee to Defend America, Turk orated: "And now Senator Gibson—who fought in the Spanish-American War as a captain. Then, upon his return from the field of battle, he was sent to the United States Senate by the State of Vermont, where he served for 20 years" . . . A young looking man of 39 waited at the microphone. "Thank you Prof. Turk," acknowledged Gibson, "for the introduction of my father. 'Who's Who' hasn't gotten around to writing me up yet."

WHEN MICHAEL ROMANOFF opened his new restaurant in Hollywood, the brightest people in the film colony assembled there—for each was a stockholder. The total amount invested was $6400. Jock Whitney's $500 was the largest single contribution. On the night before the opening, Romanoff had $4 in cash left. He couldn't have opened on schedule—if he hadn't traded in his beautiful Capehart for an icebox . . . Vincent Lopez is bidding for the Hurricane, where his band is now featured . . . George "The Real" McCoy, whose midnight program was broadcast from the steps of the Hotel Astor, is returning to the airwaves. He'll have an all-night recording show on WHOM . . . Because in every performance of "The Talley Method" Philip Merivale kicks the New Masses, in full view of the audience, the editors have put him on the free subscription list.

A MID-LENTEN switch to "names" seems to be the latest trend in the unpredictable policies of some of the major nightclubs . . . The Mayfair booked Henry Armetta, the Italo-American movie comedian, when the February rush was on . . . He will make his debut tomorrow night.

HELEN MORGAN'S NOT-UNEXPECTED success in Florida has made the Morgan name—always a fairly potent talking-point with the bookers—more marketable than at any time since the pictures claimed her (after "Show Boat") . . . Helen comes to the Versailles next Monday . . . Both Signor Armetta and La Morgan rate high pay, and the first-named is getting more money than Georgie Jessel collected.

ETHEL WATERS WOULD have been "doubling" between one or the other of two bidding Boston nightclubs and the Colonial Theater this week and next had the colored star not declined the offers . . . Miss Waters felt that she could not do justice to her role in "Cabin in the Sky" and play a nightclub before and after hours . . .

WHEN SHE WAS WORKING at the Cotton Club in New York, Miss Waters' standard salary was $1250 a week . . . She was offered the same amount for an engagement here . . . The wisdom of her decision to stick to her theatrical last was evident to enthusiastic first-nighters who encored her again and again at the Colonial last night . . . She sings five numbers in the first act, and three in the second.

THE HAUNTING TUNE "Cabin in the Sky"—which kept reminding this department (rhythmically) of "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby"—is perhaps the longest duet of opera . . . Miss Waters sings it beautifully, of course . . . The role of Petunia in Lynn Root's fantasy permits the star to skim through the ordinary emotions—all of 'em, and Mr. Root has given Miss Waters a few extraordinary moments of super-super-tragedy, and—well, heavy comedy.

ALBERT LEWIS, PRODUCER of "Cabin in the Sky," came to town for the opening . . . Mr. Lewis' illustrious career in the theater includes the production, in association with Sam H. Harris, of the great "Rain" . . . He shared in the profits of "The Nervous Wreck" and of Fulton Oursler's "The Spider," and quit Broadway for a long and profitable stint in Hollywood.

MR. LEWIS DID NOT ENJOY himself very much at the premiere . . . At least 20 technical mishaps (none of them obvious to this part of the audience) quivered fairly miserably throughout two full hours of quivering "out front" . . . The lighting, he said, was completely off base, and (in his opinion) the entire atmosphere of the show was distorted.

BUT THE SUFFERING endured by some of the boys at an important premiere in a key city seems unnecessary.

HENRY ARMETTA

HELEN MORGAN

Big Names for Hub Night Clubs

sary . . . Last night's audience seemed to love "Cabin in the Sky" . . . And a few performances will see the lighting as well regulated as it was through the show's long run in New York.

NO WASTE OF WORDS is necessary in introducing Henry Armetta to Boston audiences . . . Movie fans know his every gesture and mannerism . . . He has played in more than 40 productions since he broke into pictures (in "Lady of the Pavements") in 1929 . . . Henry has worked with Garbo . . . La Garbo, currently, is being scoffed at by some of the chatter columnists for continuing, what they call her "pose" of wanting to be alone. Mr. Armetta found her aloof and reserved, but not unfriendly . . . He has played in three Garbo pictures, and should know his subject . . . But when he calls the glamorous Scandinavian "cute," Mr. Armetta is applying the adjective we would have least expected from an attempted describer of the silent star.

Hollywood Today

HE'S WRITING NEW FILM STORY

By Louella O. Parsons

Charlie Chaplin

HOLLYWOOD, March 11—Paulette Goddard and Charlie Chaplin came out to Marsons Farm for luncheon Sunday bringing Charles Jr., who is taller than his father and such an intelligent lad. Charlie leaves next week for New York and he tells me his next story is going to be laid in the big town which he has found so changed he says he hardly knew it.

"I am going to play a drunk," Charlie told me, "who sees the world changing before his eyes—a lonely person who, in his travels, comes across a little chorus girl. Of course, she doesn't know he exists. Paulette will play that chorus girl and I am writing the story more for her than for myself. I have already written forty pages."

I smiled to myself, for knowing how Charlie works, Paulette will be safe in making the four pictures for which she is committed. Paulette had given Charles, Jr., $20. And he is spending it in symphony records. He loathes modern swing and knows every great composer and all the classical music so well it would surprise even the great music lovers.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Mary Beth Heath is wearing a bracelet put on her arm by Harry Ritz inscribed "to my future wife." Ann Rutherford and George Montgomery becoming serious; Margaret Lindsay's new heart is a lieutenant stationed in San Diego.

Yola d'Avril confided to friends at the Charles Foy supper club she is divorcing Eddie Ward, musical director of "Cheers For Miss Bishop"; Buster Collier has the measles and are his pals kidding him?

Lillian Roth, stepping out with comment on her divorce from the gentleman who socked and then married her; Eddie Cantor, who started Deanna Durbin on his radio show, lunching with her at the "U" commissary and telling the world how proud he is of his protegee.

John Shelton has eyes only for cute little Ann Baxter; Arthur Hornblow leaves Wednesday for New York for the premiere of "I Wanted Wings"; Nan Wynn and Jimmie Van Huesen, song writer, have taken up where they left off in Chicago. Both are in Hollywood.

Wonder if it's true that Lull Deste, fine actress, is selling automobiles?

Bob Marlowe, Gene Raymond's brother, has been drafted and leaves Tuesday; Ronald Reagan and Jane Wyman having more fun at Ciro's; Lynn Bari and Walter Kane celebrating their second wedding anniversary also at Ciro's.

Martha O'Driscoll promised she would kiss each one of the baseball players who scored a home run, which meant she had to kiss three; Gail Patrick and Eddie Lowe, who are definitely becoming a habit, were at the Diamond Horseshoe Ball at the Mocambo. They were in a party with the Bing Crosby and the Lin Howards.

IN HOLLYWOOD no good actor ever hides his light under a bushel for long. Alexander Knox, descendant of John Knox, one of the founders of the Presbyterian Church, played a death scene in "The Sea Wolf" that is so good it is going to have everyone talking after the picture is released.

Young Knox who came here from the stage ("Jupiter Laughs") without being heralded and he was put into "The Sea Wolf" with Ida Lupino, Garfield and that fine actor Edward G. Robinson. He is so good today the Warner executives were in a huddle deciding whether to give him the role of the minister in "One Foot in Heaven."

Knox's father was a minister and comes from Ontario as did the father of Hartzell Spence, the hero of this much discussed novel.

I WAS SORRY to hear that Mark Hellinger, a friend of long standing and one of the most able of newspaper writers, and Warners weren't able to get together to settle their difficulties. But Mark has many other offers so perhaps he will be happier elsewhere.

I was glad, however, that Jerry Wald gets a promotion to a producer. He knows his movies and he can honestly say, "I used to be a newspaperman myself." He had a column and a good one—in the old days.

'Fantasia' Now Offers Special Prices to Group Attendance

Substantial reductions in admission prices for relief societies, civic, fraternal, music, and public and private school groups have been made by the management of the Majestic Theater where the Walt Disney-Stokowski Technicolor triumph, "Fantasia," is in its seventh week.

This concession in admission prices, which is in addition to the half price for children for all performances established last week, has been made to enable as many adults and children as possible to see the history-making film, due to its revolutionary, cultural and educational nature by their teachers. Accompanied by their teachers, large groups of students have already taken advantage of this concession, including students from the Lexington Junior High School, Bridge-water, Belmont and Watertown High Schools.

"Fantasia" cannot be shown in any other cities in all Massachusetts, due to the technical problems and expense involved in the installation of Fantasound.

Theater Guild Play To Open in Boston

The Theater Guild's production of "Sophie Treadwell's" new play, "Hope For A Harvest," the Fredric March-Florence Eldridge co-starring Theater Guild production which Boston will be seeing before it goes to Broadway, is now in rehearsal.

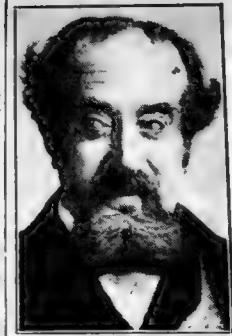

The Guild plans to send the production on a six-week tour of subscription cities outside of New York. An early fall premiere is planned for Broadway. Lester Vail is directing.

'Boob' Myers' Zanies Laugh Hit at Casino

Whitey Rochelle Forest and Susan Shaw are delighting their visually audiences at the Casino Theater on Hanover at this week are being reduced to helpless laughter by the hilarious antics of Harry "Boob" Myers and his troupe of zanies.

Philadelphia Likes 'Life With Father'

Word comes from Philadelphia that "Life With Father," the Louis Calhern-Dorothy Gish co-starring company which enjoyed such a successful run here, grossed $21,000 there the first week, the largest by any company any week for this play.

Incidentally, Miss Gish is celebrating her birthday today. Her birthday party is being broadcast over WFIL at 11:15 tonight from Philadelphia's Walnut Theater.

Maurice Schwartz Reaches New Peak in 'Sender Blank'

Maurice Schwartz, in the title role in "Sender Blank," which opened a week's engagement at the Plymouth last night, has surpassed himself. As the hearty, gusty, windy, dramatic, rollicking 55-year-old patriarch, he breezes through the delicious play with the joy and assurance of Charles Laughton in the screen version of "King Henry VIII."

Doomed to a speedy death by four savory portions of fish and an impressively ignorant professor (Lazar Freed), he is noisily mourned in advance at his bedside (and what a bedside!) But Sender has will power and no will, and where there is no will there are relatives, and he has many of them including in-laws and lawless mobs of charitable and beneficial groups in a mad rush for a share of the estate.

He reaches one of the theater's high peaks of comedy in a scene in which he leaves his deathbed to savored on the huddled group at the other end of the room. Of course he refuses to die.

There is a sweet love story threading its way through the play which involves his son, Marcus (A. Opatahu) and Lisetzka (Judith Abarbanel) daughter of the rich Zhamke Gindog, who at one time looked down at Sender Blank and who must now look up to him.

All are excellent in their respective parts and special attention must be made of Isidore Cashier as the leader of a burial society.

'CABIN IN THE SKY,' A FANTASTIC FRACAS OF FUN, OPENS HERE AT COLONIAL

23

Ethel Waters Is Singing Star

By PEGGY DOTLE

The good and evil had it out last night on the Colonial stage and never was the world-old battle ever waged with more lethal effect on the funnibone.

"Cabin in the Sky" is the title of this fantastic fracas which New Yorkers have been enjoying for the past four months, and why not? Starring Ethel Waters, one of the stage's really great actresses, and boasting a uniformly excellent Negro cast including the sensational Katherine Dunham, it is fresh, original, imaginative.

Juicily rained with high-spots, it hits one of these when Miss Waters sings "Pakin' A Chance On Love" as only she can sing a song (remember "Stormy Weather," "Am I Blue," "Supper Time") and again when Miss Dunham and her Katherine Dunham dancers transformed Tyronet at, into the torrid zone two or three times in the course of the evening.

LOVABLE RASCAL

Miss Waters' role is that of Petunia, devoted and devout wife of "Little Joe" Jackson, a lovable rascal played so engagingly by Dooley Wilson who had been unable to resist the five-alarm charms of Georgia Brown (Katherine Dunham).

As the curtain rises on Lynn Root's fable-in-reel, Lucifer, Jr., and the Lawd's General are each seeking for possession of "Little Joe," who lies motionless on his deathbed.

The praying Petunia, a rarely good woman, has the Lawd's General (Todd Duncan) lined up for "Little Joe" despite his sinfulness but Junior is equally determined to prove his worth to the Old Man by bringing "Little Joe" back. Suddenly, in the midst of this battle of angels, "Little Joe" leaps out of his earthly cocoon to do a little Eugene O'Neill, two-timing.

GIVEN A REPRIEVE

It's very comic and, aided by Petunia's fervent prayers, quite effective, for he's given a reprieve, permitted to go back to earth if he promises to divorce dice, Georgia Brown and such fleshly delights from his life.

Miss Waters' naive happiness as her flyuptheirk spouse is restored to her is something to behold. There is something heroic about her humility and joyfulness over the return of this wandering-eyed black sheep, and always there is a warmth about her acting that makes it not acting at all.

Dooley Wilson's "Little Joe" is a disarming wastrel whose non-resistance policy in the matter of naughty Georgia Brown is perfectly understandable to every man in the audience.

QUINTUPLET ZOMBIE

As for Katherine Dunham's Georgia, well, boys in the words of one of John Latouche's lyrics, she is "a quintuplet zombie" in the flesh. To the non-imbibing members of the congregation, this translates as TNT, dynamite or name your own symposium of poisons.

Since the night of Oct. 25, when "Cabin in the Sky" first hit Broadway, "Dunham's" dynamite is merely what they've been saying about this incendiary dancer who is a graduate in anthropology of the University of Chicago.

Her hit number is "Honey in the Honeycomb," but the occasion for belatedly decking with laurels Vernon Duke, distinguished composer and conductor, for his exciting music; John Latouche for his frequently brilliant lyrics and George Eastman for his inspired direction.

Tomorrow Last Day Of Calloway Revue

Today and tomorrow mark the last opportunity to see Cab Calloway and his sizzling Cotton Club Revue on the stage at the RKO Boston Theater, where he is playing to large and enthusiastic audiences.

The screen part of this special full-week combination show stars Hugh Herbert in "Meet The Chump."

BARBARA STANWYCK and Henry Fonda in "The Lady Eve," which opens on the Met screen Thursday.

Zorita's Boa Constrictor Act Thrills Audiences at Howard

Zorita, the girl who wears boa constrictors as easily as other girls wear silver foxes, is modelling a boa of boas this week at the Old Howard . . . and are the customers, loving it!

Always one of the biggest draws at this celebrated burlesque house, Zorita is repeating her past performances of breaking records. She is the star of the current revue, "Garden of Girls."

The principal comedian of the troupe is Hank Henry, "speed boy of burlesque." Assisting him in the comedy department are Harry "Hello Jake" Fields, Boston's own favorite Hebrew comic, and Al Rio, veteran funster.

'The Lady Eve' New Met Film

A beautiful girl, magnificent clothes, smart fast dialogue, gorgeous sets combined with clever acting and adroit directing are all included by Paramount to make "The Lady Eve," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda, opening Thursday on the Met screen.

The fact that "The Lady Eve" was written and directed by Preston Sturges, brilliant wit and outstanding screen director, is undoubtedly the reason for the excitement engendered by advance announcement of the Met's next film attraction.

The story itself is to be the funniest yet penned by Sturges. It concerns the meeting of a wealthy but exceedingly naive young man and the comely feminine leader of a band of international card sharps.

Henry Fonda is returning from a South American snake hunting expedition aboard a luxury cruiser liner and becomes the target of all the husband-hunting debutantes and their fond mamma, Barbara Stanwyck, cast in the role of the lovely cardsharp, manages to snare him into an introduction by tripping him and causing him to break the heel of her slipper.

That is only the beginning of a love chase that hasn't a solemn moment in it, trust. Writer-Director Sturges — responsible for "The Great McGinty" and "Christmas in July" — for that.

Among those in the big supporting cast are Charles Coburn, Eugene Pallette, Eric Blare, William Douglas, Martha Driscoll, Melville Cooper and Janet Beecher.

Comedy, mystery and romance are all combined in the second feature, "Mister Among Friends," which features the screen debut of pretty Coburn Wright, Jr., former New York club and social dancer.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

IT'S PROBABLY no time to bring up that old adage about an ill wind . . . but if it were not for the tragedy in the world today we should in all probability never meet, in the flesh, many of the celebrities who are appearing or lecture platforms all over the country in behalf of the beleaguered democracies.

For example . . . we are looking forward eagerly to seeing and hearing Mademoiselle Eve Curie, who will come to Boston on Tuesday, April 15, under the auspices of the New England Hospital for Women and Children.

Quite aside from being the daughter of Madame Curie, one of the greatest scientists of all time, Eve Curie is herself a fascinating person . . . and a brilliant one.

Her biography of her mother proved her great gift for writing . . . and she has in addition charm and wit that have made her a favorite of the international smart set, she is stunning looking and has intimate chic!

Mlle. Curie's subject will be "The Spirit of Resistance" . . . a highly significant one for a refugee . . . she comes here from England, whence she fled after the surrender of the Petain government to Germany.

Mrs. Paul Dudley Dean of Brookline, president of the New England Hospital for Women and Children, heads the committee in charge . . . with Mrs. Hubert L. Carter, Mrs. Leonard M. Wright, Mrs. James T. Pugh, Mrs. George Willard Smith, Fred B. Lund, Jr., and Frank C. Whitmore . . . full committees will be announced shortly.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT LAWRENCE BERENSON, now en route to Bermuda on their honeymoon, at their New York wedding on Friday . . . the bride was Marisa ("Gogo") Schiaparelli, daughter of the famous Paris designer, and, of course, is wearing a wedding gown designed by her mother . . . her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Berenson of Boston

Famous Writer to Lecture

MOST IMMINENT of the serious lectures is that of Quentin Reynolds next Sunday night at Symphony Hall . . . for which a long list of patronesses has been announced.

Mrs. William Haynes-Smith, a resident of England for many years who now lives on Beacon st. is a patroness, as are Mrs. George T. Rice, Mrs. Edward A. Taft, Mrs. Russell Codman, Mrs. John A. Sargent, Mrs. Raymond B. Cox, Mrs. John Walmsley Scott, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs. Sheldon Wardwell, Mrs. Charles F. Sprague, Mrs. Ralph S. Richmond, Mrs. C. Campbell Patterson, Jr., and Mrs. Charles H. Petit.

Mary Philbin's Wedding Saturday

ON SATURDAY, in Leslie Memorial Chapel, Mary McBurney Philbin will become the bride of Watson Bradley Dickerman, son of Mrs. Watson Bradley Dickerman of Oyster Bay, Long Island . . . and Boston and New York socialites will flock to the Chilton Club for the reception.

Mary, who is the daughter of Mrs. Parker Philbin of Otis Place and a deb of two seasons ago, will wear a gown of white brocade with a short veil when she walks up the aisle.

Besides her sister, J. Holladay Philbin, maid of honor, she will have six attendants, who will wear white silk jersey gowns, long-sleeved and high-necked, and will carry geranium bouquets and wear geranium-colored hats and slippers.

Her bridesmaids will be Sheila Clark of Philadelphia, Nancy King of Jamaica Plain, Mary Whitney of Lincoln, Mass., Mrs. Edward Roberts (Alice Jacques) of Boston, Anne Knowles of Boston and Phoebe Goodhue of the Long Island set.

J. Cooper Lord of New York will be Mr. Dickerman's best man, and 16 ushers will escort the guests to their places . . . among the ushers are George P. Denny, Jr., and Christian Herter, Jr., of Boston; Peter Hazard of Narragansett, R. I., and John Parker of Charles River.

Mary is a member of the Vincent Club . . . was graduated from Chatham School and studied at the Child Walker School of Design and at the Boston Museum School of Art.

The bridegroom-elect is still at Harvard . . . class of '41 . . .

Ice Carnival March 20

Skating Club Lays Plans

BOSTON DEBS and sub-debs who are practicing diligently for the annual carnival of the Boston Skating Club are eagerly awaiting the arrival of Gene Thelof and Ann Taylor, celebrated Adagio skaters who will appear on the ice with them.

The Carnival, which opens Thursday evening, March 20 and continues for three performances, marks the New England debut of this internationally famous team of skaters. They will be starred, along with Vivi-Anne Hulten, who is directing the Carnival rehearsals, and will arrive for rehearsals with the Boston skaters early this week.

The Skating Club is the scene of hectic activity from early morning to late at night these days. Inspired to even greater performance by the new popularity of professional ice shows, the local skaters are perfecting intricate steps in the ballet, the Conga and other difficult numbers.

Mrs. Edward M. Guild and Mrs. Edwin A. Kirby are in charge of costuming. Lucy Pope and George R. Blodgett are in charge of ticket sales, aided by Mrs. John A. Sargent.

Among the girls who will be featured are Mrs. George E. B. Hill (Leslie Eustis), Sylvia Van Ness, Christine "Kiki" Benedict, Ruth Flint, Roberta Jenks, and Betsy Nichols. Billy Nickerson and Donald Falvey, Jr., will appear in a Sargent number.

Birthday Horoscope

Tuesday, March 11, 1941

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are a natural peacemaker, disliking heartily anything that may be sordid or ordinary. Can become a renowned artist, perhaps a musician. Travel, secretarial work, research and writing are excellent for you of this birth date. Remember that ambition must ever be kept at a productive peak. Don't be a dreamer in this time of great activity. Look for new leads. Exploit your talents discreetly, but do exploit them. Taboo rash promises. LUCKY NUMBER—Today's lucky number is 31. LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is Alice blue. Send 15 cents and large self-addressed stamped envelope to Frances Drake, Boston Evening American, Box 1774, Boston, for an individual horoscope, personal guide and lucky calendar for the next six months and 1941, giving the day and month you were born.

You Can Be Beautiful

Nature Is Best Beauty Doctor

By ARLINE GOULD

LEAVE IT to nature . . . when a beauty miracle is to be accomplished . . . nature'll do it . . . if you know what to call in. There's the rub . . . for any amateur beauty theorist . . . because it takes the skilled analysis of science to discover some unparalleled aid . . . the most natural pore-refiner of them all . . . a tonic with peach kernel oil.

It's a good example the delectable cheek of a peach gives . . . to anyone who'd like a skin as fine textured as a peach, so firm that there's not even the suspicion of a pore opening . . . to pick up grime and turn it into a blackhead . . . or to pit the surface of a wonderful make-up until all its smoothness is gone . . . and to make you miserably self-conscious when eyes turn your way!

We're told that peach kernel oil is one of the most powerful astringents there is . . . and roughened pores need a drastic touch . . . but it is also absolutely non-drying . . . containing no alcohol or witch hazel . . . which is to be considered . . . because strong astringents will often make a sensitive skin rougher. Very inexpensive in spite of its exclusive formula.

Peach kernel oil . . . if you were to touch a bit to your tongue . . . would prove its amazing puckering and drawing talents . . . and is your proof that refining a skin until it is like gossamer silk, exquisite to see and touch, is within the bounty of nature . . . source of all beauty . . .

Use this pore tonic in every possible way it can be utilized . . . never omit the final touch of it, after cream cleansing . . . use it in the morning, particularly . . . for spring is on its way . . . and you're going to have a flower hat that's going to attract all eyes . . . but no more than the satin-textured

Macaroni Dishes for Lent

By MARTHA LEE

The cook's problem is unusually difficult during the Lenten season. There is a craving for heavy, satisfying foods that she finds it hard to cope with. Fish and cheese are good meat substitutes but tiresome if repeated too often.

How about combining some of these good foods with the macaroni products—egg noodles, macaroni or spaghetti? They make wonderful team mates—and it is a good answer to the problem of what to serve during Lent.

Macaroni is a nutritious wheat food. It and the different shaped spaghetti and egg noodles are often called "the energy trio." Any number of this trio blends naturally with vegetables, meat or fish to produce a well-balanced, healthful dish.

Here are some ideas for tasty combinations:

TUNA WITH NOODLES, PEAS AND MUSHROOMS

2 cups cooked noodles (medium width)
1 cup cooked peas
1 7-oz. can tuna
1 can button mushrooms
1 cup milk
Butter a baking dish. Arrange alternate layers of tuna, peas, mushrooms and noodles, placing noodles on top. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Dot top generously with butter. Pour milk into dish and top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in moderate oven 30 minutes.

ELBOW MACARONI WITH TUNA FISH AND CORN

1 pkg. elbow macaroni
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. flour
2 cups milk
1 7-oz. can tuna
1 cup whole kernel corn
Salt, pepper, paprika
1 cup grated cheese
Cook elbow macaroni until tender. Melt butter, stir in flour, gradually add the milk and stir over low fire until smooth and thick. Stir in tuna, corn and seasonings to taste and half the cheese. Arrange fish mixture in alternate layers with elbow macaroni in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with remaining cheese and bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg., until brown.

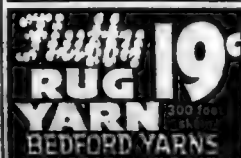

SPAGHETTI MOLD

1 pkg. spaghetti
1 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. flour
1 cup milk
½ tsp. salt
Pepper
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 ½ cup grated cheese
2 eggs
Cook spaghetti until tender. Melt butter, stir in flour and add milk gradually, stir over low fire until mixture is smooth and thick. Stir in seasonings and cheese. When cheese has melted, pour sauce onto lightly beaten eggs and mix well. Stir in spaghetti and fill greased casserole with spaghetti mixture. Put dish in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 375 deg. F., 20 to 30 minutes. Unmold onto hot platter and serve with fried tomatoes, if desired.

MACARONI AU GRATIN

1 pkg. macaroni
2 cups grated cheese
4 tbsp. butter
Salt and pepper
2 cups milk
Buttered crumbs
Cook macaroni until tender. Into a buttered baking dish put alternate layers of the cooked macaroni and grated cheese, sprinkling each layer with salt and pepper and dotting with butter. When all ingredients have been used, pour milk over all, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., 30 to 35 minutes.

Sweet Mystery of Life

LOTS of the fellows say, "Windy, with all the seniority you've piled up and the pull you got upstairs, why do you stick to this Godforsaken country? You could have a sunshine run, or squat back and bawl out other hack-hands."

I haven't got any comeback. I've wondered why, myself—thousands of times. A million miles of grease-wood and sand, baldheaded hilla, bull-rattlers, scorpions, tarantulas and coyotes. The desert never gives you a break.

Today you roll 60 across an alkali flat without a shiver in it for 30 miles. Tomorrow, looking just as white and innocent she'll bury you to the frame.

I tried a winter on the coast. No sand storms, no cloudbursts, no feathers clogging the windshield wiper. But there wasn't the old "How're yuh pard?" either from everybody from the old desert rat towing his burro to the Washoe bucks that wrap up the whole English language in "Lgh!"

This thing's got me. It always had me, even when I was a kid in the orphanage. I breathed Western magazines the women's clubs and others sent in until I couldn't stand it any longer. I ducked, and you'd have thought my first experience would have done for the rest of my life.

AT DEATH VALLEY

An "uncle" on Skid Row gave me a knife, an old knapsack and a battered canteen that didn't have any insulation or straps on it for the buck I earned cleaning a basement.

Up at my house you'll see that old canteen perched cocky on the mantel next to our onyx clock. Nina puts up a howl about it every ket, which I didn't need because it was warm, and I flopped right down under the stars.

After breakfast I filled my canteen and started. Until the heat got to doing a shimmy I could see the trail clear to the top of the hill. Even after that it was pretty well marked with mule tracks. But hot!

When I hit the top of the hill, the next valley, where the mine was supposed to be, wiggled like steam. When I looked back the one I'd left was doing the same. No ranch, no clothing—just wiggle.

Then I did see something. A pointed black hill rose above the

I could hardly breathe around it, and the air was too hot to breathe anyway.

I don't know when I went down, but when I began to notice things again it was black all around me, and I was cold. I took a drag at the canteen. If my tongue hadn't been so thick I'd have swallowed it all.

LAND OF THE DEAD

Daylight found me looking up a mountain of ugly black slag. It was the mountain behind the lake—and there wasn't any lake. Nothing but a stiff, spiky kind of cactus, white alkali that glistened so your eyes boiled, and some scrubby Joshua trees.

The sun came up burning and the heat began its nutty dance. I remembered it was supposed to rise in the east. It didn't! It jumped

The birds slid off in circles with their nasty eyes on me.

It was a sheep. She was lying flat with her neck stretched out. Her tongue, all black, was limp on the sand and her throat whistled as she panted the hot air in. Her eyes were accummed over, but they were begging me to do something.

RESCUED!

Before I knew it I had her head tipped back and was pouring my canteen dry down her throat. It didn't seem silly then, and it didn't seem silly to sit there with the sun boring down on me, keeping those birds away.

Everything began to get black. I felt like I was being whirled in fire, then lifted easy, easy like smoke was carrying me up. The sun was down when things began to happen again. There were voices, I could feel something going down my throat, and my eyes made out the shapes of a dozen Boy Scouts jabbering around me.

"He's comin' round," I heard the one holding my head say. "You guys rig up a cradle! Rig up one for the sheep, too."

Everything fizzed out again. When I came to, I was on a cot in the camp. The scout-master was pouring some kind of soup into me.

"That's better, sonny," he said. "You had a narrow squeeze. Using that canteen to flash a distress signal was pretty slick. We caught it from the top of the mountain."

"But... I didn't signal," I choked through my sore throat. "I just took it out to give water to that poor sheep."

I'll never forget his look, but all he said kind of quivery, was: "You'll do, sonny!"

Maybe I kind of got the desert cooked into me, right off the bat.

THE END.

so often, but no soap! She can stuff the radio in the basement and my shoes in the frigidaire, but that old canteen saved my bacon. It's kind of a shrine to me. And another thing: Whenever I see a Boy Scout, I salute him.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juices into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. The gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

Boy Scout troop was having an outing.

Gosh, I envied those kids, with their neat uniforms and red bandanas around their necks. They were friendly, too, and not much younger than I was.

Nothing would do but that I'd have supper with them. Say—that meal... I couldn't kick about the orphanage fodder, but bacon and eggs and apple pie and milk, out on the desert... It takes a poet, and I'm not that.

Before turning in I squatted at the edge of the circle around a greasewood fire, and listened to the scout-master explain desert stuff to the kids: Fix some point so you won't lose your bearings; if you hear a rattle in the brush, stand still; if you're shy on water, save it to drink after sundown!

The ranch foreman told me that I might get a job as water boy at a mine about 12 miles south. It was a steep pull over a black hill, but there was a trail.

One of the kids lent me a blansquirming air and right in front of it was a lake. The grass was high and green around it. Tall trees at one end waved green plumes in the sky.

"Don't drink all your water until you can fill up again!" the scout master had said. I took a little swig and dreamed about the drink I'd get when I hit the lake, which wouldn't be more than a mile away. There was a trail, too. On the desert you can imagine a trail most any place.

The sun rolled over the top of my head. The lake was still squirming off there, not a bit nearer than when I started. My head got singy, my throat felt like a hot pipe. I almost stepped on a big rattler on the shady side of a boulder because his rattle hitched in with the singing in my head. I started to cry but no noise came, and the tears just sizzled on my cheeks.

"Don't drink 'til sundown! Don't drink 'til sundown!" It was a chant, with my head-thumps timing it. My tongue was so big and cottony that on me from every direction at once.

When I tried to get up, I couldn't. My thin soles were worn off; my feet were cut, burned and swollen. I didn't kid myself. My number was up, but it didn't seem important. I guess when you're in a world where everything's dead you don't mind dying so much.

I scrunched up against a Joshua tree to get what shade I could. The canteen pushed into my back. It was funny how, even then, I kept thinking what the scout-master had said—me backed up against a tree with my eyes shut to keep the sun from burning them out.

The thing swooshed past my face twice before I could blink them open to see a big black bird, which I didn't know was a buzzard, tacked in a wide circle. Two more squatted on rocks not 30 feet away, pretty much interested in something on the ground right in front of them.

It was rounded like a big boulder, but it was kind of pumping like no rock ever could. Maybe a kid's got to be dead before he quits being curious. I dragged myself up,

Look at America

WE'RE ON OUR OWN. We'll sink or swim, here in America, depending on whether we are competent, able to solve our own problems.

The dictators say democracy won't work—too inefficient. The very word "democracy" is under fire. Today, our form of government faces a challenge as serious as it did when the 13 colonies united.

Well, not quite. We are forty-eight strong and well-united states now. We have a large share of all the world's wealth. We have discovered and developed an astounding number of resources. We have scientists, thinkers, doers to spare. We have skills and arts and traditions and experiences now.

We have used up the wilderness, but we've replaced it with a thousand new frontiers. Four or five years ago a Yale professor, C. C. Furnas, wrote a book called "The Next Hundred Years." In that book he pointed out the pitiful little strip of knowledge we have mapped and the vast areas of wilderness and ignorance ahead of us.

When he wrote that book we had not yet discovered sulfanilimide and its chemical relatives. Probably that drug has already saved more human lives than the War of the Revolution cost!

Atomic energy, with thousands of times the energy of gasoline, was a dream five years ago. It is only a possibility today, but it is already newspaper news—a step nearer, perhaps very close.

It is up to us in America today to create our own style, develop our own art, try out our own tastes.

Are we efficient enough? Can we do it? We can if we keep free our means of communication and expression.

If progress—and failure—can be reported without hindrance, if the things men do—in politics and sociology and science and business—can be discussed, compared and weighed, we shall have a great era of progress—greater than all the progress that has gone before.

And all we need, to guarantee that freedom to grow, is a strong and fearless press. Need? We do not need to create such a press. We need only to keep it. You are reading a sample of it at this moment.

We need only to appreciate it, conserve it, defend it, keep it free.

On the Line, By Bob Considine

AN OPEN LETTER TO BABE RUTH

Dear Babe:

Just an on the line to apologize to you for falling in step, long ago, with a group of blokes who believed that you had no right to a big league managerial job. Well, maybe that sounds harsh, but we were among those who believed that you should prove yourself to be a handler of men, and particularly young men, before expecting a hard-hearted mogul to turn over his property to you. We remember saying that there should be some place in baseball for the man who saved it, but we thought that a promotion job of some kind would be a better niche for you than managing.

Well, sir, we're taking all that back because we were lucky enough to stumble into your baseball school at Palatka, Fla., yesterday. We saw you at work, and we talked to the man who hired you to do this work, and to some of the kids who work under you.

We're the guy who got you out of bed at the crack of 10 o'clock at your big, ramshackle rented house in Palatka. You came out with the sleep in your eyes and a little of your ample middle bulging out of your blue pajamas. And you talked of your baseball class, and when you talked about the kids you had much the same look in your eyes as kids have when they talk about you.

Chassey Boy Looks Good to Ruth

You were as interested in everything every one of them was doing. Maybe deep in your big-water-melon heart you knew that a lot of them never would learn to play baseball, but you were all for them. You knew that if they failed it was not going to be because you neglected them.

You told us about the way you had talked to the kid who drove to the school all the way from Chicago, and yet was so shy that he wouldn't put on a uniform except at night in his room—when his roommate was asleep. You told us about the 17-year-old kid whom you had to teach how to stand on the rubber. And the way you get the 75 scholars all hepped up, ready to scrap, and the way you teach them your own deathless swing. And, more important, the way you let their swings develop naturally, if it is unnatural for them to swing as you did. That's important, Babe. That's the kind of humble wisdom that makes good managers. And you beamed all over when you were talking about a kid named Bill Ennis of Chassey, Mass. You said he handled himself like Camilli and that some day he'd be "up there."

You were sitting there in the big chair by your window, and two of your scholars walked by, on the way to the ball park about a mile away, and they waved to you from the pavement. And you gave them one of those basso hellos out the door, and then gave them permission to ride out to the ball yard with me. You boomed "just this once" to them, because you know that walking helps their legs.

Well, sir, they talked about you on the way out there. They said you were the best guy in the world. That you had patience. And when they said that word patience we remembered that that was supposed to be the main thing you wouldn't have as a manager. They said that you had the ability to see every mistake being committed on the ball field simultaneously, and that you had a way of explaining things to them that was right down their alley. They said they'd do anything for you.

Plays Square With Kids

At the Palatka ball park we talked also to Ray Dean, who is as run this school for 10 years now, and who appointed you a kind of headmaster three years ago. He told me that he had tried them all, from Alexander to Hornsby to Feller, etc., and he had never run across a big longer who could teach baseball as well as you can. He said you can teach more in less time and that old instinct of yours because of which you never threw to a wrong base, extends into the handling of young men. He said it was a disgrace that you had been overlooked so long.

Dean told us how you and he worked . . . how you never kidded a kid into coming back for another five-week ($50) semester. He said you knew when they'd never make ball players and, better, knew how to tell them. He said that you soundly believed that if a boy could run fast and throw well he could be taught to hit and field, and that if he couldn't run or throw he was wasting his money.

Dean said that it was your name that brought those 75 kids from 26 different states to absorb your wisdom. And then he said something that clinched our growing belief that the love of baseball is so keen in you that you would make somebody a first class manager. He said: "Listen, Babe's got more money than he'll ever need. He's down here working for peanuts because he wants to be near the game, wants to help it. He could be over at Miami Beach having a whale of a time and taking those bows, but there he is out there on the field now with all those kids in different uniforms, instructing them, umpiring for them, shagging balls for them, giving them everything he's got."

Ferrell Makes Debut As Bee Against Browns

By BILL CRIMES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 11—After their sojourn at Randolph Field today, during which they were to be taken on an inspection tour of the post, to lunch at the officers' club and then into a regular game with the West Point of the Air team, the Bees will be on the go without a break for two weeks.

The Stengelese are scheduled to play the St. Louis Browns again tomorrow at Tech Field. They've broken even with the Honeycombs in two games and Manager Casey Stengel expects them to come through with another win in the third game of the long series.

Wesley Cheek Ferrell will make his debut on the mound for the Bees against the Browns. Although he has worked steadily since reporting here, Ferrell hasn't attempted to force himself. He believes that he's in fairly good condition. He admits that he has a couple of stiff spots on the back of his right shoulder but he's confident that a few days of warm sunshine will eliminate that condition.

PLAY MILLERS

After Ferrell figures he has had enough, George Barnicle will take over the mound duty. Like Ferrell, Barnicle will be making his first start. He has worked very faithfully for two weeks and looks much better than he did last spring over at Bradenton. "Barnie" will go for three innings and then Dick Erickson will finish up.

Following their third game of the series with the Browns tomorrow, the Bees will bus over to New Braunfels, which is just a short ride, to play Manager Tom Sheehan's Minneapolis Millers.

Early Friday morning, the Bees and the official Boston party will start for Monterrey, Mexico.

Although it is only three days away from the trip to Mexico, there are still a few details which must be straightened out. Before he left for Randolph Field this morning, Sec. Duffy Lewis admitted that the St. Louis Browns, who arranged the trip to Monterrey, hadn't received permission from the Mexican government to play the three games.

IF THEY MAKE THE TRIP

Then too, the players on both clubs messed up the notices to their respective drift boards and there may be a kick back. And, on top of that, the Mexican consul here in the Mission City informed Sec. Lewis that the U. S. Immigration inspectors will insist upon vaccinating not only the Bees and Brown ball players but everyone who accompanies the teams to Monterrey. Compared to getting in and out of Mexico, it's as easy as rolling off a log to enter or leave Canada.

The Bees will remain in Monterrey (if they make the trip) until Monday morning, and they are due to arrive back here early the evening. One week from today they'll be up at Austin for a tilt with the University of Texas Longhorns, who are coached by Bib Falk, the former Red Sox scout. And on the following day they'll start on a three-day jaunt to Brownsville, Harlingen and San Benito, all of which towns are down in the Rio Grande Valley. The Fort Worth team is training at Brownsville, Toledo is at Harlingen and San Antonio at San Benito.

LAME ARMS

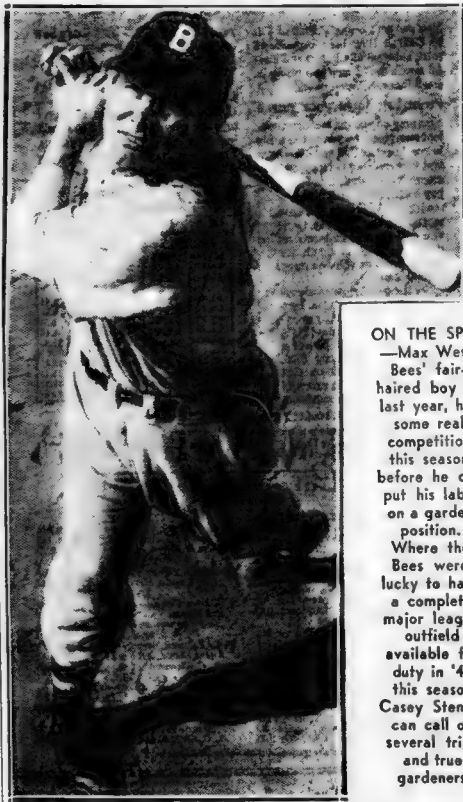

Then the Bees return here for a two-game week-end series with the St. Louis Browns.

Art Johnson, the Winchester boy, was to have pitched against Randolph Field today, but he developed a lame arm and has been ordered to rest. Warren Spahn, the very prevailing 18-year-old left-hander from the Bronx city, will take Johnson's place.

"Whitey" Wietelmann has a severe cold in his chest. Johnny Cooney is suffering from a head cold, as are many of the other players.

Doc Cramer Finally Reaches Camp

ORLANDO, Fla., March 11 (AP)—Roger (Doc) Cramer, who is a cinch to become Washington's regular center fielder, finally is in camp and ready to begin workouts. But President Clark Griffith still is seeking Alejandro Carrasquel, missing pitcher.

ON THE SPOT

SOX ROOKIE HANDLES SELF LIKE BILL TERRY AT PLATE

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 11—Anybody who has ever seen Bill Terry hit would swear Sweet William was in the Red Sox camp when Al Flair comes to bat.

The Sox rookie first baseman is left-handed like Terry and has that perfect Terry stance at bat. Like Bill again, he can pole that ball for great distances to left and center fields.

Right now the kid is having his troubles trying to learn to pull the ball to right field.

Why the Sox organization insists that a left-handed batter pull his hits is beyond me, because there are only three parks in the American League with short right field fences—Yankee Stadium in New York, League Park in Cleveland and Sportsman's Park in St. Louis.

REMEMBER MAHAN?

Joe Cronin denies that he has anything to do with this pulling business.

That pulling business always annoyed me, and Barnie Rowell's case last year is one reason why.

The Bees second baseman was leading the league in hitting until the Bees visited Ebbets Field.

The right field fence is very close there and very inviting. Barnie couldn't get it out of his mind. So instead of hitting straightaway as

BRUINS CINCH FOR N.H.L. TITLE IF LEAFS LOSE

Needing tonight's victory to just about sew up their third National Hockey League flag in a row, close to 17,000 ice fan-atics will bulge the Boston Garden to its very exits to see those surging Bruins go after the faltering Toronto Maple Leafs.

It's all or nothing for those Leafs tonight.

A loss would count them out except for the slimmest mathematical possibility, a chance so remote that a gambler would bet 1000 to 1 on the Bruins.

Here is the situation in a nutshell:

If the Bruins win: They will go two full games ahead of Toronto with a game in hand and three remaining. In other words all the Bruins would have to do if they win tonight would be to get a measly tie in one of their three remaining games to insure the title.

A SWEEP LOOMS

The remaining games are with the lowly spirited Americans in New York Thursday, an afternoon affair with the Wings at Detroit Sunday and a windup with the Wings here next Tuesday night.

Chances are that the Bruins will take all three—but they could lose two, tie one and still take the championship provided they beat Toronto tonight.

If Toronto wins: A triumph for the Leafs and victories in their two remaining games would force the Bruins to win two and tie the other of their remaining games to win out.

If the game is deadlocked: Toronto would have to win its two remaining games while all the Bruins would need would be a win and a tie in its three final games to win out.

LEAFS MISS APPS

Thus it's easy to see that the Bruins are in a nice spot. Those Leafs after losing to Canadiens last Thursday and going skyhigh defensively in their 8 to 5 defeat at the hands of the Rangers Sunday, are apparently on the skids.

There is no doubt that the loss of Syl Apps, brilliant center who went out of action a week ago with a torn ligament in his knee, hurts greatly.

But the Leafs are a better team than they have shown themselves to be this past week. They have plenty of class and may come bouncing back tonight to give the Bruins the game of their life.

Happy Day's outfit can't afford to play conservative hockey tonight. They've got to hit with everything they've got and if the Bruins aren't right on edge, they only windup on the short end.

BRIMSEK LEADS GOALIES

Chances are, though, that the Bruins will be more than ready.

They now have an added incentive.

HERE'S ICE IN YOUR EYE—"Cowboy Bill" Cowley of the Bruins, hockey's record playmaker of all time, rides his steeds right to the portals of Frankie Brimsek's nets in a Bruins workout at the Garden in preparation for tonight's game with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Victory tonight will practically sew up the third straight N. H. L. title for the Bruins. To Cowley goes much of the credit for the Bruins' great season.

from nowhere these past two weeks to take the lead in the goalies battle for the Vezina trophy. The records show that the B's have had 94 goals scored against them but Brimsek was off the ice on one occasion which means that his record is 93 against. That puts him one ahead of Hovvers of Detroit and two ahead of Toronto's Brodia.

With this as the situation, the Bruins can't afford to relax even if they should beat Toronto tonight for two of the three remaining games are against Detroit.

ROSS FEARS LETDOWN

Those Bruins don't intend letting Brimsek down and that attitude is all right with Art Ross.

The Bruins' general manager's one concern has been that if his gang wins tonight they will let down for the remaining games and then may never be able to pick up when the playoffs start.

By maintaining a winning gait right through next Tuesday night our heroes should be ready for the first playoff round against Toronto.

But that's looking a bit too far ahead.

Tonight's affair is the issue at hand.

A victory is most important, and the Bruins have every intention of chalking up that all important win.

AN OPEN LETTER TO BABE RUTH

Dear Babe:

Just an on the line to apologize to you for falling in step, long ago, with a group of blokes who believed that you had no right to a big league managerial job. Well, maybe that sounds harsh, but we were among those who believed that you should prove yourself to be a handler of men, and particularly young men, before expecting a hard-hearted mogul to turn over his property to you. We remember saying that there should be some place in baseball for the man who saved it, but we thought that a promotion job of some kind would be a better niche for you than managing.

Well, sir, we're taking all that back because we were lucky enough to stumble into your baseball school at Palatka, Fla., yesterday. We saw you at work, and we talked to the kids who work under you.

We're the guy who got you out of bed at the crack of 10 o'clock at your big, ramshackle rented house in Palatka. You came out with the sleep in your eyes and a little of your ample middle bulging out of your blue pajamas. And you talked of your baseball class, and when you talked about the kids you had much the same look in your eyes as kids have when they talk about you.

Cohasset Boy Looks Good to Ruth

You were so interested in everything every one of them was doing. Maybe deep in your big-water-melon heart you knew that a lot of them never would learn to play baseball, but you were all for them. You knew that if they failed it was not going to be because you neglected them.

You told us about the way you had talked to the kid who drove to the school all the way from Chicago, and yet was so shy that he wouldn't put on a uniform except at night in his room—when his roommate was asleep. You told us about the 17-year-old kid whom you had to teach how to stand on the rubber. And the way you got the 75 scholars all hopped up, ready to scrap, and the way you teach them your own deathless swing. And, more important, the way you let their swings develop naturally, if it is unnatural for them to swing as you did. That's important, Babe. That's the kind of humble wisdom that makes good managers. And you beamed all over when you were talking about a kid named Bill Ennis of Cohasset, Mass. You said he handled himself like Camille and that some day he'd be "up there."

You were sitting there in the big chair by your window, and two of your scholars walked by, on the way to the ball park about a mile away, and they waved to you from the pavement. And you gave them one of those basso hellos out the door, and then gave them permission to ride out to the ball yard with me. You boomed "just this once" to them, because you know that walking helps their legs.

Well, sir, they talked about you on the way out there. They said you were the best guy in the world. That you had patience. And when they said that word patience we remembered that that was supposed to be the main thing you wouldn't have as a manager. They said that you had the ability to see every mistake being committed on the ball field simultaneously, and that you had a way of explaining things to them that was right down their alley. They said they'd do anything for you.

Plays Square With Kids

At the Palatka ball park we talked also to Ray Dean, who is as ran this school for 10 years now, and who appointed you a kind of head-master three years ago. He told me that he had tried them all, from Alexander to Hornsby to Feller, etc., and he had never run across a big leaguer who could teach baseball as well as you can. He said you can teach more in less time and that old instinct of yours because of which you never threw to a wrong base, extends into the handling of young men. He said it was a disgrace that you had been overlooked so long.

Dean told us how you and he worked . . . how you never kidded a kid into coming back for another five-week ($50) semester. He said you knew when they'd never make ball players and, better, knew how to tell them. He said that you soundly believed that if a boy could run fast and throw well he could be taught to hit and field, and that if he couldn't run or throw he was wasting his money.

Dean said that it was your name that brought those 75 kids from 26 different states to absorb your wisdom. And then he said something that clinched our growing belief that the love of baseball is so keen in you that you would make somebody a first class manager. He said:

"Listen, Babe's got more money than he'll ever need. He's down here working for peanuts because he wants to be near the game, wants to help it. He could be over at Miami Beach having a whale of a time and taking those boys, but there he is out there on the field now with all those kids in different uniforms, instructing them, umpiring for them, shagging balls for them, giving them everything he's got."

Ferrell Makes Debut As Bee Against Browns

By BILL GRIMES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 11—After their sojourn at Randolph Field today, during which they were to be taken on an inspection tour of the post, to lunch at the officers' club and then into a regular game with the West Point of the Air team, the Bees will be on the go without a break for two weeks.

The Stengelese are scheduled to play the St. Louis Browns again tomorrow at Tech Field. They've broken even with the Haneymen in two games and Manager Casey Stengel expects them to come through with another win in the third game of the long series.

Wesley Cheek Ferrell will make his debut on the mound for the Bees against the Browns. Although he has worked steadily since reporting here, Ferrell hasn't attempted to force himself. He believes that he's in fairly good condition. He admits that he has a couple of stiff spots on the back of his right shoulder but he's confident that a few days of warm sunshine will eliminate that condition.

PLAY MILLERS

After Ferrell figures he has had enough, George Barnicle will take over the mound duty. Like Ferrell, Barnicle will be making his first start. He has worked very faithfully for two weeks and looks much better than he did last spring over at Bradenton. "Barny" will go for three innings and then Dick Erickson will finish up.

Following their third game of the series with the Browns tomorrow, the Bees will bus over to New Braunfels, which is just a short ride, to play Manager Tom Sheehan's Minneapolis Millers.

Early Friday morning, the Bees and the official Boston party will start for Monterrey, Mexico.

Although it is only three days away from the trip to Mexico, there are still a few details which must be straightened out. Before he left for Randolph Field this morning, Sec. Duffy Lewis admitted that the St. Louis Browns, who arranged the trip to Monterrey, hadn't received permission from the Mexican government to play the three games.

IF THEY MAKE THE TRIP

Then too, the players on both clubs messed up the notices to their respective draft boards and there may be a kick back. And, on top of that, the Mexican consul here in the Mission City informed Sec. Lewis that the U. S. Immigration inspectors will insist upon vaccinating not only the Bee and Brown ball players but everyone who accompanies the teams to Monterrey. Compared to getting in and out of Mexico, it's as easy as rolling off a log to enter or leave Canada.

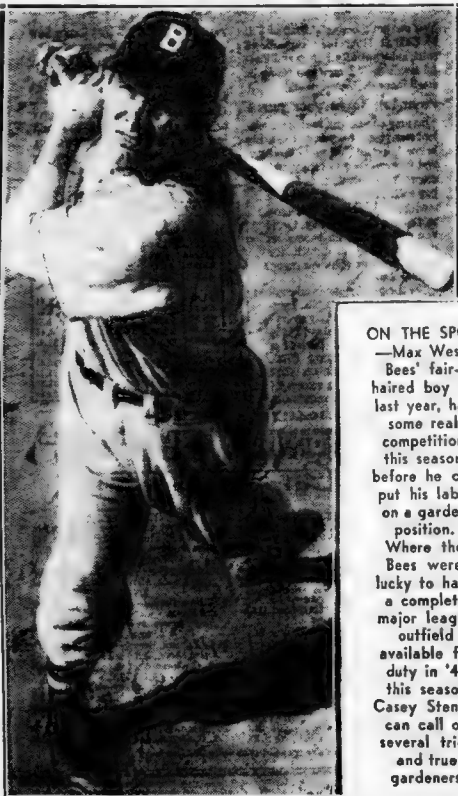

The Bees will remain in Monterrey (if they make the trip) until Monday morning, and they are due to arrive back here early the evening. One week from today they'll be up at Austin for a tilt with the University of Texas Longhorns, who are coached by Bib Falk, the former Red Sox ace. And on the following day they'll start on a three-day jaunt to Brownsville, Harlingen and San Benito, all of which towns are down in the Rio Grande Valley. The Fort Worth team is training at Brownsville, Toledo is at Harlingen and San Antonio at San Benito.

LAME ARMS

Then the Bees return here for a two-game week-end series with the St. Louis Browns.

Art Johnson, the Winchester boy, was hit pitched against Randolph Field today, but he developed a lame arm and has been ordered to rest. Warren Spahn, the very prevailing 19-year-old left-hander from the Boston city, will take Johnson's place.

"Whitey" Wietelmann has a severe cold in his chest. Johnny Cooney is suffering from a head cold, as are many of the other players.

ON THE SPOT

—Max West, Bees' fair-haired boy of last year, has some real competition this season before he can put his label on a garden position. THE YANKEES would bid $150,000 for Ted Williams if they thought there was a chance of the Red Sox parting with the services of their brilliant kid slugger I learned from authoritative sources while in Florida.

There is not any truth to the report that the Yankees have been trying to trade Bill Dickey, veteran catcher, for Jimmy Foxx. Joe McCarthy is smart enough to know that Dickey is on the way out as a star, and that Tom Yawkey would not consider parting with the hard hitting Foxx.

McCarthy would like to land Williams. So would Ed Barrow. They would not consider a price of $150,000 excessive for Ted.

Williams would be much more valuable to the Yanks than Foxx. When the Yankee Stadium was built, the right field stand was moved in so as to make it easier for the left-handed Babe Ruth to hit home runs.

Williams poles out 400-foot smashes to right field without much effort, and they would land in the stands at the Yankee Stadium.

Foxx, on the other hand, is a left and center field hitter, and would not sparkle as brilliantly as Williams in the Yankee Stadium. Williams also has a dozen years of big league baseball ahead of him, while Foxx has reached his baseball peak, and will be on the downgrade in a few more years.

Joe McCarthy kept in close touch with the Red Sox situation last season at the time Williams was at odds with the world. Secretly McCarthy was hoping he might eventually be able to land Williams.

Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins succeeded in lining Williams up for another season. There has not been any announcement as to the amount of Williams' contract, but it is understood that Ted will receive $15,000.

Joe Cronin gave an idea of how highly he rated Williams when he told me at Sarasota recently that the kid sensation is the greatest batter in baseball with the possible exception of Joe DiMaggio.

Williams is charged with confidence in himself which is often mistaken for conceit and freshness. It has been the history of athletics that most of the youngsters who reach the top kick over a few fences on the way up. What if they do provided they get results for their ball club? Baseball and other sports cannot be run by the same rules as a Sunday School picnic.

They say Williams talks out of turn. They said the same thing about Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth.

As long as Ted keeps delivering in the pinch, it is not important whether he uses split infinitives or the rough language of the street. Ted is also young, and he will polish off with age and experience. Most athletes do. His explosive nature will help him continue to star.

The future of the Red Sox depends upon young ball players like Williams, Dom DiMaggio and Bobby Doerr. The high priced old-timers had their chances to win American League pennants and failed to do so. Tom Yawkey must now look to the kids.

Washington to Have View of Tony Galento

WASHINGTON IS to have a view of Tony Galento on April 8 when the Newark tavern keeper will mingle with Buddy Baer in a 15-round bout. It is a Mike Jacobs Twentieth Century Club promotion and it is expected to show whether Galento or Baer has a possible chance to be listed as an opponent for Joe Louis at some future date. The answer should be no, but it may be yes if the "Brown Bomber" wins from Billy Conn in New York in June.

Galento forfeited whatever consideration he was entitled to for another bout with Louis when he was knocked out by Max Baer in Jersey City last summer. It was one of the most disgraceful exhibitions of boxing I have ever witnessed. Galento used every foul trick in the book before he was finally stopped by Baer. At one stage of the bout Galento put his head under Baer's chin and then proceeded to jump in the air. Max's head shot back from the effects of the unfair jolting. The Jersey crowd booed Tony for his foul act.

Brother Buddy will try to take up where Max left off. Buddy is a long way from being Max's equal as a fighter, but he still may be good enough to conquer Galento.

Prominent political and social leaders will occupy ringside seats when Galento and Baer will meet. The match will be staged under the supervision of the Boxing Commission for the District of Columbia.

Frank Dane, who used to make his home in Boston, was the pioneer for legalized boxing in Washington. Frank got into difficulties with the authorities when he ran a show in the Capital when boxing was not permitted there. I have not heard from Frank in several years, but if he is in the East I hope Mike Jacobs has him as his special guest at the Galento-Baer bout. Pioneers are at least entitled to a little gratitude.

PERSONALLY I believe Tony Shucco of the North End would give Joe Louis more ring opposition than would either Galento or Buddy Baer. . . . Try and get either Galento or Buddy to enter a ring with Shucco. . . . Tony would outpoint either of them without much effort.

Tom Yawkey forget all about his $1,300,000 loss with the Red Sox as he worked out in uniform with his players at Sarasota, Fla. . . . Tom made many times $1,300,000 when the New Deal skyrocketed the price of silver a few years ago.

Mike Jacobs 61; May Retire, Raise Flowers!

NEW YORK, March 11 (INS)—Mike Jacobs was 61 years old today.

And, after 35 years in the boxing business, America's ace pugilistic promoter expressed plans to lay down the sword and shield.

Jacobs said, "In a few years—maybe three, perhaps five—I'm going to retire."

The question then arose concerning his probable successor as the impresario of ringdom from Manhattan to Kansas City and from Washington to Boston.

Somebody mentioned Jimmy Johnston. Others suggested in this connection were Herman Taylor, Jacobs' Philadelphia agent; Tom Gallery, Mr. Big of boxing on the West Coast; Nate Lewis, Chicago promoter, and even Detroit's high-kicking sportsman, wealthy young Frank Norton.

But all Jacobs had to say about his successor was:

"It'll be an awful scramble." Mike left the general impression that the thing he is waiting for most is the time he can raise flowers at his palatial rural residence at Rumford, N. J.

Eight Women On 'Fix' Jury

LOS ANGELES, March 11 (INS)—After five days of trying to find a jury which never had laid a bet with a bookie, counsel accepted 4 men and 8 women to try defendants accused of bribing jockeys to "fix" Hollywood Park horse races.

Deputy District Attorney W. E. Simpson's statement to the jurors of what the state expected to prove against the sextet was forced to wait, however, when Superior Court ruled that three alternates instead of the customary two also would have to be accepted by both sides.

NEW ORLEANS, March 11 (AP)—Jimmy Perrin, New Orleans, and Jackie Callura, Hamilton, Ont., fought to a 10-round draw here.

17th Straight Victory for Greg Rice

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Greg Rice made it 17 wins in a row when he led Mel Trutt home by five yards in the two-mile event of the eighth annual Catholic University Indoor Track Meet at Uline Arena in S.W.D.

DARTMOUTH TO REPRESENT N. E. IN HOOP TOURNEY

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Just as practically everyone expected although some hoped for the worst, Dartmouth has won the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League championship for the fourth successive season.

But totally unexpected in most circles was the Indians' decision to try for post-season honors in the National Collegiate A. A. tournament. They'll represent the New England area in the Eastern sectional series at Madison, Wis., March 21-22 against Pittsburgh, Wisconsin and North Carolina.

ONLY PRINCETON LEFT

Dartmouth clinched the league title last night by leading the Columbia court to wreck a jinx of six years standing and beat the Lions, 39 to 33. It was their first victory in the Columbia Gym since 1934, and it wasn't an easy one. Columbia led, 25-21, at half time, and it wasn't until eight minutes before the end that Dartmouth tied the score for the fourth time and pulled away to win.

The Indians wind up their season tomorrow against Princeton with nothing more in sight than another individual scoring championship for Captain Gus Broberg. He scored 13 points—six in the second half—last night to boost his season's total to 153. That's far short of the record of 186 he established last year, but so Columbia's Bill Hensinger was held to seven points, Broberg now has an eleven-point margin over his nearest rival.

The defeat dropped Columbia into a second-place tie with Cornell and they'll fight it out Saturday night. Each has won eight games and lost three so far, compared with Dartmouth's first-place record of 10 victories and one defeat.

ATTENDANCE INCREASE

Another important victory last night was the 47-43 triumph City College of New York recorded over New York University in the feature game of a Madison Square Garden double-header before 17,886 fans. That earned for City the eighth place in the national invitation tournament at the Garden March 18. St. Francis upset its Brooklyn rival, St. John's, 55-41 in the opening tilt.

Last night's crowd brought the total attendance for 17 bargain bills at the Garden to 247,925, an increase of 24,551 over last season.

settled for 54 feet, 6 inches. Walter Mehl, Wisconsin, scored a four-yard victory over John Mullins of Columbia, Mo., in the Edward Killian Memorial mile, in 4:18.5.

Gene Venzke, New York A. C., was third. The time bettered the meet record of 4:22.6.

Double Goalie Hockey Plan Gets Tryout

NEW YORK, March 10 (AP)—Alex Smith, the old Ottawa and Boston defenseman, has "scouted" the National Hockey League by introducing two-goalie hockey to Madison Square Garden.

Smith, now coach of the New York Rovers of the Eastern Amateur League, experimented last Sunday at alternating Gerry Conny and Johnny Fischer in the nets, and the Rovers beat Atlantic City, 5-3.

Smith changed his goalenders every five or six minutes and said he was satisfied with the success of the experiment.

"I read where Dick Irvin talked about trying out this scheme with the Montreal Canadiens," Alex said. "As a matter of fact, Frank Boucher of the Rangers has been thinking of the same thing for two or three years."

"We tried it because I've got two swell goalies, and it always seemed a shame that only one could play at a time. They both were highly enthusiastic about the way it turned out. Every second time we switched forward lines we switched goalies."

Smith plans to repeat the experiment next Sunday and at the same time try out the idea of having only one blue line—at center ice—instead of two. This is intended to cut down offside and provide more room for the players to operate on "ranging" plays.

"I think if the new rules are adopted, we'll certainly need two goalies," Smith commented.

Behind the Net

Montreal Maroons of 1926 were a fighting bunch of ice ball-raisers. . . . they won the Stanley Cup and skated with chips on their sturdy shoulders hoping somebody would knock 'em off. . . . Nels Stewart, Babe Siebert, Reg Noble and Harry Broadbent were One Hundred Minutemen in penalties wearing the maroon, and Dunc Munro, Frank Carson and Dinny Dismore weren't the Mr. Mock type. . . . they skated hard, checked hard, shot hard, and itched for a solid free-for-all. . . . big Nels Stewart was the league's top scorer and respectable. Clint Benedict was just about the best goalie around. —WHIT CUSHING.

34 WILLIE HOPPE MAKES 2-DAY STAND HERE

EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, MARCH 11, 1941

Willie Hoppe, the world's perennial billiard champion, arrives in Boston tomorrow to open a two-day exhibition at the Twentieth Century Rooms on Summer street.

The 53-year-old veteran, current holder of the three-cushion crown, will play afternoon and evening matches each day, opposing the outstanding players of the East at both three-cushions and balkline.

One of the features of his Hub showing will be an 18.2 balkline match with 87-year-old George Slosson, former champion whom Hoppe defeated in a world title balkline match at the Grand Central Palace in New York City in 1906.

Hoppe's career is one of the most amazing in the history of sport and during his 35-year reign as the world's outstanding cue star, he has held the title at every type of game played in the green cloth. His feat of winning 20 straight games against the pick of the world's performers to capture the three-game cushion crown in 1940, broke all records for tournament play and the accomplishment will probably never be equalled, according to the experts. Last month at Chicago, he left a sick bed to win 16 out of 17 games and retain the crown.

Skeeter Aid To Jurgens

By HERB FINNEGAN

MIAMI, Fla., March 11 — Billy Jurgens met Skeeter Newsome for the first time the other day, and the Giants shortstop greeted the little Red Sox utility infielder like a long lost brother.

Jurgens, you know, is suffering dizzy spells as a result of a "beating" last summer.

His condition was so serious a few days back that the Giants were thinking seriously of sending him home. But Jurgens couldn't go until he saw his pal, Skeeter Newsome.

Skeeter knows what it is to be beamed. In 1937 he was playing an exhibition game with the A's at Bridgton, N. J., when he was hit in the head by a semi-pro spitball pitcher. He was out for five weeks and lost his regular shortstopping job with Connie Mack.

He reported for the season of '38 with high hopes because the bells in his head had stopped ringing during the winter, and he was hoping around the shortstop position with his old posse.

TWICE IN TWO YEARS

But one week before the season opened, he was playing against Portsmouth of the Piedmont League. Another exhibition game.

There was a 35-mile gale blowing on that 10th day of April in '38, and there was a 35-mile-a-minute pitcher working for Portsmouth.

"Never did see the pitch," said Skeeter and he was felled like a rock for the second time in two years. His team mates actually thought he had been killed. Lou Finney was with the A's at the time, and he can't forget it.

"It was the worst thing I ever did see," says Lou. "Doctors wanted to cut his head open to save his life but Mr. Mack (Connie) wouldn't let them. 'Don't you touch that boy with a knife unless it is absolutely necessary,' warned Mack, and that is the only thing that saved Skeeter's life," Lou recalls.

And so little Skeeter, who was looking forward to his best season on the diamond, lay in a hospital all season long. Those annoying little bells came back to tantalize him, and they rang in his head all winter, and all the next season.

Mack made him wear a helmet at bat during '39 but Skeeter never did get going. Finally he was sent to Baltimore.

WROTE TO JURGENS

"Last winter my dizzy spells stopped all of a sudden, Skeeter was saying today. 'Didn't have one all year with Baltimore and had a good season. Batted .277 and led the league in doubles.'

"When I read about Jurgens last summer, I immediately wrote him and explained my case. I told him not to get discouraged because he probably would get well all of a sudden just like I did."

The Giants need Jurgens badly. They took a sharp nosedive after his accident last summer and finished sixth. Their cause seems hopeless if he can't play this year.

But he'll play if Skeeter Newsome has anything to say about it, for it's been little Skeeter more than anybody else who has been keeping Jurgens' faith up ever since his accident last summer.

And that's why Billy Jurgens, Giants' shortstop, greeted Skeeter Newsome, of the Red Sox like a long lost brother when they met for the first time today.

Sox Rookie Bats Like Bill Terry

he did at National League Field, he started shooting for the right field bleachers and got so many 4-0's that he never did get back into the batting race.

But enough of pulling. Let's return to Flair.

"Did anybody ever tell you you hit like Bill Terry?" was asked the pleasant 22-year-old youngster from New Orleans.

"No, nobody did, but I'm glad to hear you say that. Bill used to play in New Orleans a lot and I modeled myself after him."

"I watched his foot work at the plate, how he'd step into the line of the pitch and hit straightaway."

"I used to love to see those line drives rip off his bat to left center. So if I remind you of him at the plate, I'm pleased. I only hope I can equal his record."

WRAPPED UP IN HEROES

Flair is one of those baseball hungry kids, whose every move has been wrapped up in his heroes. And his heroes were Terry, Mel Ott and Zeke Bonura. Ott and Bonura live in New Orleans, and Flair still sees a lot of them. In fact, once in a while he's tempted to cock his right leg like Ott, which might make him a sucker for the slow stuff, but his record denies it.

The kid graduated from Fortier High in New Orleans in '37, and after graduation was sent to the Sox Class D farm at Moultrie, Ga.

In '38 they shipped him to Canton, a C league, and Flair batted .346 there. At Rocky Mount in '39 he batted .312 and at Scranton last year .314 (They had him pulling).

He's a young giant, is Flair. He towers four inches above the six-foot mark, an ideal target for infielders.

KNOWS AVERAGE

He's not so fast or flashy in the field as Paul Campbell or hasn't the general all-around polish of Ulysses Lupien, but anybody who can hit like Bill Terry has a future in major league baseball whether with the Red Sox or not.

Cubs Cut $2500 More Off Lee's Contract

AVALON, Cal., March 11 (AP)

Bill Lee's holdout siege has cost him $2500 so far. The Chicago Cubs offered him $13,500 at first a cut of $5000. Since then the offer has been sliced to $10,000 and General Manager Jim Gallagher says that is the club's final and best offer.

The Cubs still are trying to peddle Hank Leiber, holdout outfielder, preferably for pitching talent.

BIG INCREASE IN COLLEGIATE BOWLERS

The collegiate championship of New England will be decided during the American-Record grand candlepin bowling championships to be held at the Huntington Club from March 29 to April 12.

Inaugurated three years ago as an experiment, the collegians' title competition has grown by leaps and bounds until today the baby of Manager Jack Stafford of the Huntington Club has become one of the most hotly contested divisions in the annual pin congress.

ALLEYS IN COLLEGE

Virtually every New England college is represented in this division including Harvard, Yale, Boston College, Holy Cross, Dartmouth, Tufts, Boston University, Northeastern, Colby, Bates, Maine and many others.

Bowling has shown a remarkable surge among New England colleges of recent years, so much so that many such institutions have installed alleys and many others have made tie-ups with alley owners near the college. The general improvement in alley conditions, the high type places now in operation and the fine exercise afforded by the sport have done much to build up the game's prestige and good will not alone in boys' but girls' colleges as well.

NEW RECORD LOOMS

The college champion will be presented his diamond-studded medal as symbol of his title victory, just as winners in every other amateur division will be rewarded.

Early indications lead to the conclusion that the 1941 American-Record tournament will be the biggest and best yet. There's more interest being evidenced on all sides than ever before, more men and women engaging in the rolling pastime, more teams and leagues in operation and more early entries than in past years. But it is of paramount importance that entries be shot along immediately. There's room for every bowler in New England and all are warmly welcome to take part. But the earlier the better is urged by the tournament committee.

1100 Children Walk From Fire

The value of school fire drill was proven today in an aftermath of a very real alarm which saw 1100 children file orderly from two adjoining Roxbury schools within a space of 10 minutes.

The blaze, starting from defective bell wiring at the front door, was in the Hugh O'Brien school, Dudley at the fire alarm, sounded by Master Joseph E. Lynch, operates in both schoolhouses, separated only by a passageway.

In the adjoining Ralph Waldo Emerson school, Miss Marion Kanner, master's assistant, directed the fire drill of 560 youngsters with 17 teachers aiding in herding the children to safety. Led by Master Lynch and Sub-master J. Arthur Roberts, 20 teachers in the O'Brien School did likewise for their young charges.
